Local 814 Ends Four-Month Dispute With MPSC

By PETE DANIELS
Managing Editor

Members of Local 814 of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers met in special session here Sunday afternoon and voted to accept a 32 per cent wage increase proposal, thus ending a four-month strike against Missouri Public Service Co.

Richard Green, MPSC president, said Monday, "It is with reluctance that MPS agreed to the settlement because it will compel the company to seek increased rates throughout the territory." He said the wage settlement would cost the company about $2 million a year.

William Copas, Local 814 business manager, said Monday morning the new three-year contract was still "not completely satisfactory, but we feel we're closing the gap in some respects."

The union voted to accept offers of a 12 per cent hourly wage hike effective, and retroactive to, Oct. 1, 1970; a 3 per cent hike effective July 1 this year; an 8 per cent increase on Oct. 1, 1971; and a 9 per cent increase on Oct. 1, 1972.

Once the last increase is realized, Copas said, linemen will be making $1.49 an hour more than they are now — or $5.66 an hour.

"We'll still be behind (linemen for other utilities) at the end of the three-year contract," Copas said.

Green said, "In view of the mushrooming growth in MPS territory and the increased tempo of construction due to the spring season, the public interest made the desirability of settlement vital. The construction program of Kansas City International Airport also has reached a point where before long the operational date could be affected by further delay of construction work."

Green also listed hardships on non-union and union employees and their families, an expected new peak in demand for services this summer and delays in installation of equipment as other factors.

After the union meeting Sunday, Local 814's negotiations committee met with company representatives at Holiday Inn at 6 p.m. and signed the contract, Copas said.

He added that some union members were expected to be back to work by 1 p.m. Monday. "They have 10 days from noon today to return to work," Copas said.

He also said that some members who have been on strike may have obligations to other employers and he gave that as the reason for the 10-day grace period.

Copas said he and a company representative went to Jefferson City

Monday to ask the Missouri Public Service Commission to drop an arbitration case and cancel a public hearing which had been scheduled for 9:30 a.m.

The union went on strike Jan. 9 with a demand for a 39 per cent wage hike spread over three years. The company offered 24 per cent.

The State Mediation Board, which entered the case after negotiations failed to settle the strike, recommended a 32 per cent increase and the union agreed to accept that Jan. 16. The company, however, held out for 27 per cent.

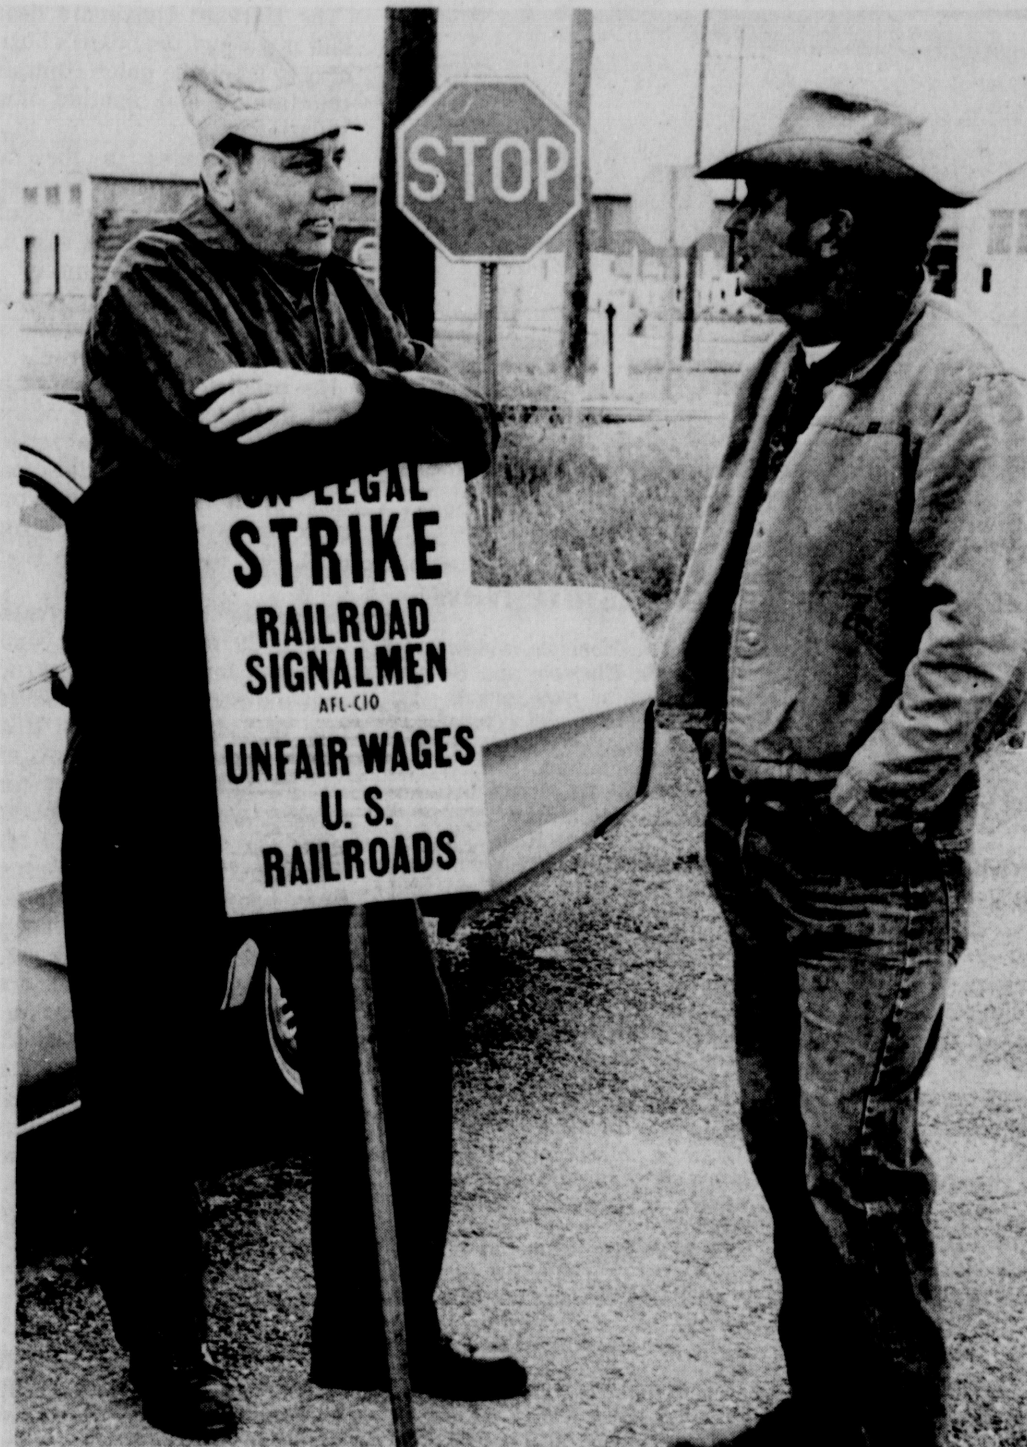

Three weeks ago both parties agreed to binding arbitration by the PSC and the first public hearing was set for Monday.

The union meeting Sunday followed the 32 per cent wage hike offer made by Green.

William R. Clark, PSC chairman, told the Associated Press he was happy the strike was settled without commission intervention. Commissioners were reluctant to set a precedent for future utility strikes, he said.

Last week, Clark abruptly ended a pre-hearing conference when he removed everyone, including himself, from the meeting when the company and union apparently failed to agree on what issues were to be brought before the commission, Copas said.

Rail System Is Paralyzed By Signalmen's Shutdown

WASHINGTON (AP) — A strike by signalmen today paralyzed the nation's railroad system.

President Nixon quickly appealed to Congress to extend the contract of the striking unions until July 1 to provide time for more negotiations toward a voluntary settlement.

Both Senate Majority Leader Mike Mansfield, D-Mont., and House Speaker Carl Albert, D-Okla., expressed doubt Congress could act today to end the walkout.

C. J. Chamberlain, president of the AFL-CIO Brotherhood of Railroad Signalmen, said in advance he would obey any act of Congress.

The union is asking for a 54 per cent increase over three years in wages averaging $3.78 hourly for skilled signalmen. The railroads offered a 42 per cent increase in 42 months.

The signalmen install and maintain electrical railroad signals. Chamberlain said the union's demand for extra pay is an "equity adjustment" aimed at raising their wages closer to the wages paid electricians outside the railroad industry.

Secretary of Labor James Hodgson said the union was demanding more money than most other rail unions already had settled for. He added:

"It is incredible that the half million employees of the rail industry should find themselves out of work and that millions of Americans should be subjected to service disruptions by this action taken by a relatively few employees."

Other large unions respected the picket lines of the 13,000-member signalmen's union which represents about two per cent of all rail workers.

As the President's proposal went to Congress there was a question how soon it could be acted upon. Only routine business had been scheduled for today and many members were not present.

A Department of Transportation official said if the strike lasted two weeks it would reduce the nation's production of goods and services by 5.8 per cent. He said a four-week strike would mean a 14 per cent reduction and eight weeks would mean 24 per cent.

In a message to the Congress, made public at the Florida White House in Key Biscayne, Nixon said:

"A nationwide stoppage of rail service would cause great hardship to all Americans and strike a serious blow at the nation's economy. It is essential that our railroads continue to operate."

The President called on the Senate and House to promptly pass a joint resolution that, technically, would have the effect of extending until July 1 the present contract between the rail industry and the signalmen.

Nixon said Secretary of Labor James D. Hodgson would work during that period toward promoting a voluntary settlement. In the absence of a negotiated agreement, he called on Hodgson "to report to me and the Congress by June 21."

At Council Meeting

Cablevision To Ask Rate Hike

Jim Adkisson, manager of Cablevision, Inc., told the Democrat-Capital Monday that the company will formally request a $1 rate increase at the City Council meeting tonight.

Several weeks ago it was learned that Cablevision had approached Mayor Jerry Jones and the council with a tentative plan to raise its rates from the current charge of $4.90 a month.

In Cablevision's letter to the city, it was claimed that local cable services were less expensive than in most other cities in Missouri and that the company was compelled, under a 1969 ruling, to install a broadcasting facility at 600 South Osage. Construction of the live broadcasting system was required by the Federal Communications Commission, the letter said.

Adkisson said that local broadcasts would include telecasts of school and civic activities.

Last Thursday, however, the U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in St. Louis set aside the FCC live broadcasting rule. Three circuit judges ruled that the FCC had no authority to order cable TV systems to originate at least part of their own programming.

In the decision, the judges wrote the compulsory origination rule of the FCC "goes far beyond the regulatory power approved in other cases."

Adkisson said the ruling is not expected to have much of an impact on the company's plans for Sedalia.

"As far as I am concerned, we will go ahead with our live broadcasts," he said. Adkisson said Cablevision had already acquired a television camera and some other equipment. "We have already done some work with respect to the new building," he said.

Adkisson also said he was glad there had been a case questioning the FCC edict. "I think it is a good idea for the courts to decide whether certain cable television systems will have to go along with the FCC on this and whether or not the FCC regulation will be rescinded," he said.

In other council activity tonight, the city's new trailer park ordinance is expected to be read for the second time. Jones said there is a possibility that the ordinance might be read for the third time and approved by the council.

An ordinance changing the name of Industrial Ave. to Classic Ave., may also be approved, according to Ralph Dedrick, city clerk.

The council is expected to open bids on a quantity of rock for road work and act on some liquor license applications.

State Legislature Fighting the Clock

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — Time begins to pinch Missouri's Legislature this week.

Leaders of both houses have announced they will spend much of the week debating their own bills, trying to get them passed and sent across the rotunda to the other branch.

No cutoff dates have been set. But from a practical standpoint, any House bill still on the House calendar or any Senate bill still on the Senate calendar by the end of this week would have only a remote chance of passage unless it got special handling.

Under new annual session ground rules, work on bills must end June 15, less than a month away.

When it came back to work today, the House faced debate on a controversial bill to let public employees organize and bargain collectively on wages and hours.

Labor unions want that right spelled out in the law because their collective bargaining position is under a legal cloud now and the right of public employees to strike has been challenged repeatedly.

Also on the House docket as special orders of business for today are bills to:

Permit interstate compacts on pest control.

Provide subdistricts in the election of junior college trustees.

Prevent national banks from taking tax credit on their tangible personal property. Designate Jan. 15 as "Martin Luther King Day" although not a state holiday.

The Senate, easily sidetracked in legalistic controversy, does not follow the practice of setting bills as special order of business but has many on its calendar which could produce lengthy arguments.

One is a truck length bill designed to help double deck automobile carriers which shuttle across the state on interstate highways.

Another would raise from $50 to $100 the breaking point where theft of property becomes a felony instead of a misdemeanor.

Meanwhile solution of such major problems as the budget and congressional redistricting are nowhere in sight.

Local Amtrak Trains Stopped By Dispute

The only two Missouri-Pacific Railroad trains still serving Sedalia were stopped Monday morning by the nation-wide strike of the AFL-CIO's Brotherhood of Railroad Signalmen.

Train No. 16, due in Sedalia at 9:50 a.m. from Kansas City, was stopped in Kansas City. The railroad made "other provisions" for passengers on the train, according to Tim Hogan, manager of public relations for Mo.-Pac.

Train No. 16 is one of two operated by the railroad as part of the nation's new Amtrak rail system, which began operations May 1.

A railroad spokesman at the Missouri-Pacific Shops here said Monday that the shops were empty. "There's no one here. I'm just locking all the doors," he said.

Hogan read the railroad's prepared statement to The Democrat-Capital Monday. It said:

"We regret the serious blow to the economy of the territory we serve caused by the union holding out for an exorbitant 54 per cent increase.

"We have had to say no to this inflationary proposal and we believe it's unfortunate for them (the union) to be pushing for a completely unreasonable increase. Only about 500 signalmen from the Missouri-Pacific system are causing our more than 24,000 employees to be out of work," it said.

Hogan reported that Mo-Pac employs about 320 people in Sedalia and has a payroll in excess of $3 million annually.

"When the strike took place, all trains on the route at that time were being moved to the nearest terminal and after that we will try to serve our shippers wherever possible by using supervisory personnel," the release said.

According to Hogan, "All passenger trains operated under contract with Amtrak are halted. We only have the one train from Kansas City to St. Louis. The one this morning (Monday) stayed in Kansas City."

Hogan said all perishable goods were being moved to locations where refrigeration facilities were available.

Union members were on picket duty Monday morning at the Missouri-Pacific Shops and at the depot.

control, recreation, and fish and wildlife conservation," the Army has said.

Two possible dam sites are being considered by the Corps of Engineers — one five miles southwest of Sedalia on Flat Creek and the other 11 miles southwest of the city limits.

Situated between those two sites are hundreds of acres of bottomland, whose owners, with the exception of one man planning retirement, recently expressed their displeasure with the project to The Democrat-Capital.

Leon Morgan, who has farmed in the area for 20 years, said he spent several years attempting to acquire 300 acres of fertile Flat Creek bottomland in 1966.

"Since that time," Morgan said, "I've worked to clear it and farm it and now it might be flooded by a project which might not do everything the Corps hopes it will do."

Morgan, who purchased the land with hopes it would provide a form of retirement income, questions whether the flood control potential of the project will offset the value of the farmland it would flood.

"I don't know if the Corps of Engineers will give me what this land is worth," Morgan said. "That bottomland is twice as valuable per acre as the other land on my farm, and more than that considering the time and effort I spent to acquire it."

Wondering if channeling might be a preferable alternative, Morgan said the Corps of Engineers has not informed him how much water would stand in the proposed reservoir.

The Corps had reported earlier the site five miles southwest of Sedalia would encompass a drainage area of 129-square miles and the site six miles further southwest would cover a 61-square mile drainage area. However, by mid-May, the Corps told The Democrat-Capital, it had not been able to determine in the $53,000 study just exactly which lands would be flooded by the project.

"I'm sure most Sedalians would like to see this project come in, especially from the recreation angle," Morgan said, "but what if the shoe were on the other foot? I don't imagine too many Sedalians would be willing to give up the better part of their life's work," he added. "Besides, bottomland like this is almost impossible to buy anymore."

Records show that several reservoir projects have shaped a largely agricultural area, within easy driving distance from Sedalia, into one containing more lake shoreline than any comparable section in the United States.

Another Corps of Engineers project, the Harry S. Truman Reservoir at Warsaw, scheduled for completion in 1978, is only 30 miles from Sedalia's south city limits. The Lake of the Ozarks, the largest lake in terms of shoreline in the United States, is just over an hour's drive to the southeast. Lake Pomme de Terre, completed in the late 1960s, is about 30 miles south of the massive Harry S. Truman reservoir, and the recently completed Stockton Reservoir, now at about 95 per cent of its capacity, is approximately 40 miles southwest of Pomme de Terre, still keeping it within a two-hour drive from Sedalia. A bit further, but still not that far, is the popular Branson-Tablerock Dam resort area.

A. P. Tucker, Green Ridge, whose 189-acre farm includes 60 acres of bottomland, told The Democrat-Capital he has experienced little flooding on his property and also suggested channeling as an alternative to the reservoir.

"The stream is dirty and clogged in places," Tucker said, "and that causes overflow as much as anything else during wet weather."

"There's more flooding to the north and east than there is in this area, but if they put a reservoir five or 11 miles southwest of Sedalia, I don't see how that will assure there won't be continued flooding near Smithton or Syracuse," Tucker continued.

Public Hearing Tuesday

Area Farmers at Odds With Flat Creek Study

By BOB SHEUE
Democrat-Capital Staff Writer

The Army Corps of Engineers will hold a second status report meeting on the need for reservoir flood control measures on Flat Creek, south of Sedalia, at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday at Smith-Cotton High School amid reports from several Green Ridge area farmers expressing opposition to the project.

The flood control study, underway since 1968, has been allotted $53,000 so far, with a Nixon administration request of an additional $41,000 for fiscal year 1972, the largest study allocation for the project since its original authorization.

The resulting lake or lakes are being considered for purposes "including flood control, water supply, water quality

'Unconstitutional'

Ervin Blasts Crime Bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Sam J. Ervin says the Nixon administration's latest crime control bill is unconstitutional and motivated by politics rather than practicality.

The North Carolina Democrat and constitutional expert said the Nixon administration wants only to "impress on the American people the idea that the Justice Department is concerned about so-called law and order."

"They just want to make it appear to the American people that the Nixon administration is attempting to lock up all the dangerous criminals," the 74-year-old Ervin said in an interview.

The administration bill, sent to Capitol Hill Friday, would allow pretrial without bail for up to 60 days of persons accused in dangerous or organized federal crimes. That feature is among the most controversial in the recently-enacted law covering the District of Columbia.

Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell said the measure is designed to "protect the public" and added pretrial detention would not be imposed until "after a hearing with appropriate procedural safeguards."

Its use, Mitchell said, would be limited to defendants convicted of a felony within the past 10 years, those charged while free on bail from another charge or on parole or probation from other felonies, and drug addicts.

Ervin charged that in addition to being unconstitutional, preventive detention as Mitchell wants it simply would not be effective in fighting crime.

"I believe the attorney general is of sufficient intelligence to know that trying to fight crime by preventive detention is about as practical as trying to empty the Atlantic Ocean with a quart cup."

Ervin said a Bureau of Standards study made in the District of Columbia over a four-week period in 1968 showed that "only 5 per cent of those people charged are re-arrested within an 18-month period."

"And virtually all who committed crimes while on bail from a different charge did so after 60 days"—the administration's proposed limit for detaining suspects prior to trial.

It subjects people to the dangerous possibility and certainty that multitudes of innocent people will be detained," he said.

Pushing Benefit Hike

WASHINGTON (AP) — An additional increase in general Social Security benefits, effective next year, will be vigorously pushed in Congress, despite the close failure of the first effort in a House committee vote.

The basic benefit for retired persons, their widows and dependents and the disabled was raised 15 per cent in 1970 and an additional 10 per cent this year. But proponents of an increase say the benefits still are not keeping pace with the inflationary increase in the cost of living.

The House Ways and Means Committee, putting together its big welfare-Social Security measure, included provisions meaning larger benefits for widows and a number of special categories of recipients. But it turned down three proposals for raising the basic benefit.

A move by Rep. James A. Burke, D-Mass., for a 50 per cent increase, went down without a recorded vote. A proposed 7 per cent increase was defeated 13 to 11 and a 5 per cent increase 13 to 12.

In each case several Southern Democrats joined the Republican minority to defeat the increase. Significantly, however, Chairman Wilbur D. Mills, D-Ark., voted for both the smaller raises.

If past practice is followed, the House will consider the bill under a rule permitting no amendments. So the next opportunity will come in the Senate, which may not consider the measure until late this year, or even in 1972.

But a proposal for an increase is certain to be made in the Senate, sources said, and is likely to carry sending the final decision to a conference committee.

The later the vote on a Social Security increase comes, supporters said, the better are the chances for enactment, especially in an election year.

The bill now automatically increases benefits when the cost of living rises 3 per cent or more in a year. But unless Congress decides otherwise, it also prevents such an increase from taking effect in a year following one in which another legislated increase comes into effect.

Bus Law Is Questioned By Missourian

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — A Catholic parent has asked the U.S. District Court to declare Missouri's school bus laws unconstitutional.

Urban Luetkemeyer, who lives west of Jefferson City on U.S. 50, brought the suit Friday against the Centertown R-I-III board of education, the State Board of Education, and Arthur L. Mallory, state commissioner of education.

Luetkemeyer's children have been refused the right to ride the school bus to St. Martin's Catholic School, which is between the Luetkemeyer home and Centertown.

Previously the father asked the state Human Rights Commission to intervene, charging the school board with discrimination. The commission said it had no jurisdiction because the issue had been settled in state court decisions.

The suit asks that school bus transportation be provided pupils of both public and private schools. It charges refusal to provide service would be discriminatory and a violation of the 14th amendment to the U.S. Constitution.

Viet Troop Cuts

Mark 5-Year Low

SAIGON (AP) — The U.S. Command announced today that American troop strength in Vietnam was reduced by 4,600 men last week to 262,500, the lowest total in more than five years.

Of the men withdrawn last week, 2,600 were Marines, leaving 8,600 in South Vietnam. All but a small number of advisers will be withdrawn by early June.

The total U.S. troop strength is the lowest since March 1966, when there were 231,200 men.

Mutual Fund Industry Again In Public View

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — Any industry that controls the use of $54 billion in assets is bound to create a public stir every so often, but the mutual fund industry, which has attained that size, has roiled the waters time after time.

It takes little effort to recall the legislative hearings that led to stiffer regulation, the criticisms about the quality of performance, the accusations about overcharges, their dumping of shares and so on.

In a quieter way, the industry is now provoking a lot of discussion within the financial community, specifically in regard to matters of advertising, liquidity and redemptions.

A quick personal survey will show that mutual fund advertising is dull and often uninformative. One current ad, as an example, carries this less than smashing message:

"A no-load fund. Investing in stocks selected for long term growth possibilities. Individuals and institutions are invited to request free prospectus."

It isn't that they don't know how to write snappy copy—you might be seeing some of it before long. The problem is with regulations of the Securities and Exchange Commission that thwart creativity.

These regulations have the effect of restricting mutual funds to mainly tombstone ads, so named because they look like tombstones, and probably also because they suggest that the advertiser is almost lifeless.

The industry has been smarting under this impediment, and one can presume that it decided to act after a survey for its trade association, the Investment Company Institute, showed that:

Some 44 million American families do not know about mutual funds... 58 million families do not own funds... 14 million families are aware of funds but still do not own any.

The campaign is on now to loosen the regulations. Sen. Harrison A. Williams Jr., D-N.J., told an institute meeting that he hopes the restrictions will be relaxed and that he might even support legislation to that end.

Anxiety about the liquidity status, or the percentage of assets kept in cash or securities easily converted to cash, comes mainly from without the industry.

Less than a year ago the funds had close to 12 per cent of assets in liquid form. By November this had dropped to 9.1 and by the end of the first quarter of this year to 6.2 per cent. Many funds had much lower ratios.

Different interpretations can be put on these percentages. Some say the ratio should fall as the market rises because the funds should be committing their cash to stocks growing in value. Others maintain the ratio should be high when the market has risen, indicating profit-taking.

That discussion sometimes becomes so academic as to prove nothing. But what concerns some market observers and participants is that should some funds be forced to redeem their shares suddenly they might not be able to do so without problems.

Such funds could, it is said, be forced to sell their investments in stocks at unattractive prices—even take losses. Such a process could feed on itself. It has happened before.

And that brings up the third matter, that of redemptions. They've been rising, not ominously but at a rate that bears watching. Sales stagnated in the first quarter but redemptions rose to $989 million from $841 million a year earlier.

Cadets in the first class at the Air Force Academy, which opened in 1958, chose the falcon as their school mascot.

Huge Pay Package Approved

WASHINGTON (AP) — A White House board set up to ride herd on construction-industry wage increases has approved a pay package double the 6-per-cent guideline often mentioned by the administration.

Announcing approval of a 12-per-cent pay hike for union painters in Little Rock, Ark., Chairman John T. Dunlop said Friday his Construction Industry Stabilization Committee has no hard and fast figure for gauging proposed wage settlements.

The Harvard University dean said it was not the board's business to label one union contract inflationary and another non-inflationary.

Other increases in the industry, he said, "may be 6 per cent, they may be 8 per cent, they may be as in this case 12 per cent, they may be more."

But, Dunlop said, the board has no target figure, and the 6-per-cent mark is nonsense.

He predicted the committee will make extensive use of authority to approve bigger settlements for craftsmen whose pay has fallen behind other construction workers in the same area, as in the Little Rock case.

Since the board was created March 29 by President Nixon as a tool for fighting construction-industry inflation, Secretary of Labor James D. Hodgson's remarks had led to assumptions raises of 6 per cent or less would be the general rule.

Dunlop called those assumptions nonsense. And he quoted Hodgson as saying: "I want to make clear that all the press nonsense about 6 per cent does not apply."

The Little Rock decision was the first announced by the board, although, Dunlop told newsmen, a dozen other cases have been decided. He declined to furnish details.

Heroin Marks Saigon Sunday

By HOLGER JENSEN
Associated Press Writer

SAIGON (AP) — Small Vietnamese motorcyclists hurtle through the air and land with meaty thuds on the dusty track. But the GI isn't watching. He pours a vial of white powder into his menthol cigarette, rolls it between his fingers and lights up.

It's Sunday afternoon at the motorcycle races and the private admits:

"I've been a heroin addict for nearly nine months. Two months in Vietnam and I was hooked. I don't shoot it, I only smoke it. But I've got the craving. Notice how nervous I was before? See how good I feel now?"

The 21-year-old soldier is thin, sandy-haired with a straggling mustache. He was a military policeman when he became addicted. Now he drives an armored car as part of the capital's security force.

"My girl friend got me started. She was only 15 and smoking it herself. She told me it was scag—you know, cocaine—and I said why not? Two months later I found out it was heroin. By then it was too late."

Behind him all is confusion in the motorcycle pits. One race is over and the riders rev their machines before the admiring gaze of giggling teen-age girls in black pajamas.

"I got an illegal apartment off base and set up house with my girl," the GI said. "The rent was 14,000 piasters a month and I was only earning $180 (29,700 piasters). Pretty soon I was spending all my money on rent and drugs."

"I was smoking five to six vials a day, she was smoking two or three. Our habit was costing 2,700 piasters a day and I just couldn't afford it."

"My girl introduced me to a mamasan and papasan who were working the black market. They told me I could buy stuff in the PX and sell it to them. A lot of guys do it. I worked it so I was making 20,000 to 40,000 piasters a month extra. And I spent it as fast as I could make it."

"I knew I was getting really messed up. I wanted to quit but ..."

The words are drowned out by a roar from the stands.

"Last year my kneecap got messed up and I thought it would be a good time to quit the habit. I was in a hospital, in traction, an ideal opportunity to go cold turkey. But another guy saw me sweating and getting stomach cramps and he immediately offered me some smack."

"I found there were 10 guys smoking heroin right in the wards. There went my plans."

"The stuff is just too damn easy to get in Vietnam. Even if you kick it you still have the craving. It's only 700 piasters a vial and all you have to do to get it is walk out of the base gate."

"Three-quarters of the guys in my company are on heroin, some of them mainliners. They used to smoke pot but nearly all of them have switched to heroin now. The vials are small, easy to hide. There's no smell so you can't get caught."

The cycle track is guarded by Vietnamese MPs and soldiers who spend most of their time restraining spectators from running in front of the racers.

"They don't care," said the GI, unconcernedly rolling another heroin joint in full view of three MPs. "They know Americans use this stuff. Some of them even sell it to us. Why should they care if our lives are screwed up?"

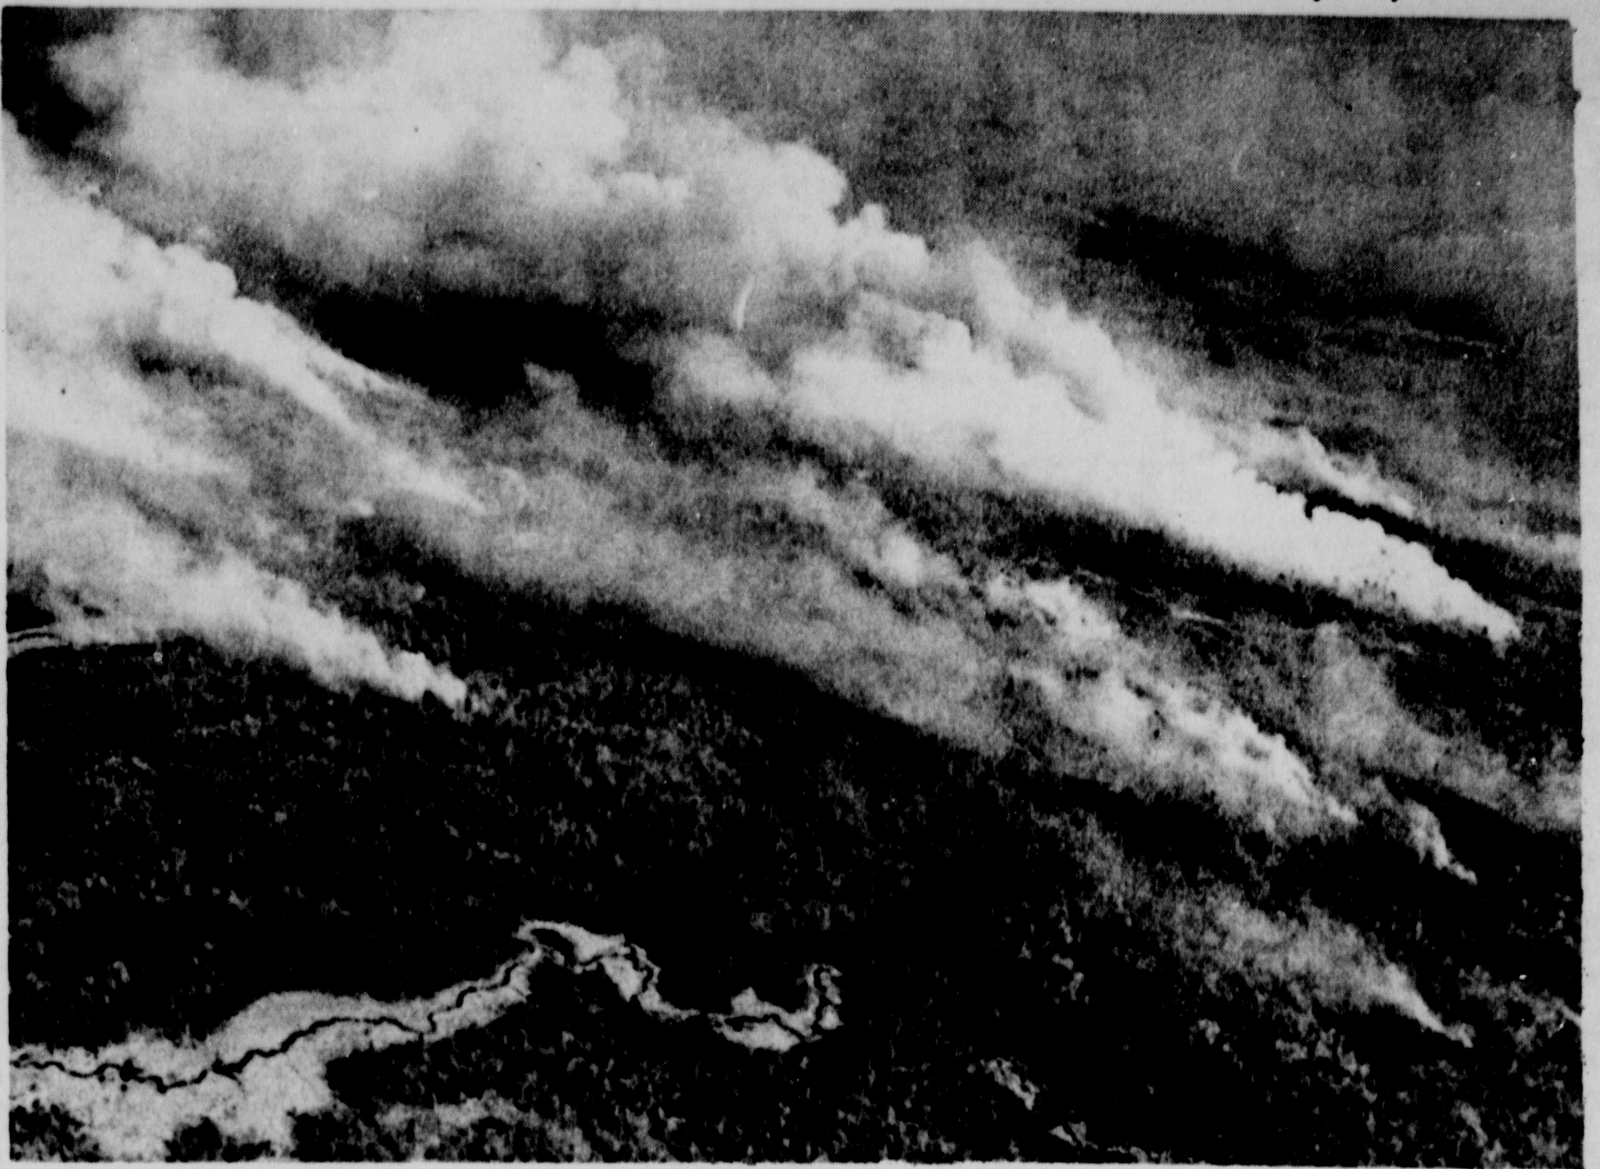

"My commander busted me to private because he thought I was slacking off. When I told him it was because of heroin he couldn't believe it. He said he wanted to help me, but now he has to court-martial me. The MPs caught me buying too much booze and cigarettes at the PX and charged me with black marketeering."

"Three weeks ago I tried to quit the habit. For two days I didn't touch the stuff. I had stomach cramps, sniffles and sweating. Then I started again."

"I wrote President Nixon a letter telling him about the narcotics here and how it's messing up so many guys. I put it to him straight: 'You sent me here and now I'm a junkie. Are you satisfied now?'"

"Tell my story," says the GI. "Maybe it'll stop some guys from doing what I did. I'm going to quit you know. Tomorrow I turn myself into the hospital. Tomorrow ..."

It turns out later that he did go to the hospital, but disappeared while he was being admitted under an amnesty program.

Minnesota Blaze

The worst fire in the history of the Lake Superior National Forest, in northeastern Minnesota, continued to rage out of control Sunday. Fire fighters from Michigan, Illinois, Wisconsin and Missouri aided Minnesota foresters and volunteers in backfiring the blaze which has already consumed 15,000 acres of timberland. (UPI)

Reports Conflict On Cost For SST

WASHINGTON (AP) — The White House is moving to assure Senate backers of a revived supersonic transport that it really won't cost another billion dollars to get the SST program going again.

The use of the billion-dollar figure by spokesmen for the prime SST contractor, Boeing Co., was viewed by Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield as dimming any prospect his chamber will go along with House action last week and vote to put more funds into SST development.

Battle over the money estimates was the focus of five hours of Senate debate scheduled today. A vote is in prospect early Wednesday evening.

Sunday, Clark McGregor, the former Minnesota congressman now the chief White House lobbyist on Capitol Hill, said Boeing Chairman William Allen was wrong in predicting an SST revival could cost as much as $1 billion.

"Should the Senate vote to continue the SST as the House has done, startup costs will be nothing like those publicized as having come from the Boeing chairman," McGregor asserted.

McGregor commented on the CBS TV-Radio program "Face the Nation."

In a news conference last week Allen said all SST contracts would have to be renegotiated before any work could begin, probably at a higher cost. He said the scattered SST assembly team would have to be rehired.

These and other expenses would bring the cost for renewing the SST production to no less than $500 million and perhaps as high as $1 billion, Allen said. The aerospace industry, hurt by the refusal of Congress to refund the program two months ago, would now want iron-clad guarantees the project would go forward to completion, he stated.

McGregor cited estimates it would cost some $700 million just to dismantle the SST program compared to no more than $500 million to revive it.

No matter what the White House says or what new cost figures may emerge, the damage may have been done.

Democratic leader Mansfield told newsmen he has heard of no senator switching position in favor of the SST. He said "the prospects don't look too good" the Senate will change course.

Quoting Allen, Gary A. Soucie, chairman of The Coalition Against the SST, told senators in a letter they may be voting to spend another billion dollars no matter which of the two Boeing cost estimates prove correct.

If the startup cost is no more than $500 million, Soucie said, it would still cost $478 million to complete the two prototypes, bringing the total to $1.063 billion.

If Allen's higher prediction of a billion-dollar startup cost is realized, the total would run about $1.56 billion, Soucie said.

Officially, all that is at stake is the $85 million fund the House converted from a termination fund to a revival fund.

Turnout For Rally Slight

JUNCTION CITY (AP) — No more than 25 Ft. Riley soldiers attended an anti-war rally by the Kansas City chapter of the Vietnam Veterans Against the War in Junction City's park Sunday.

Handbills advertising the rally had been distributed at Ft. Riley.

Police Chief Gerald Ponton estimated the crowd in the park at 150. Police counted 81 members of the anti-war group who arrived Friday and 37 additional persons from a six-vehicle caravan.

The caravan brought chapter members from St. Louis, Jefferson City and Kansas City. The group was given police escorts by Ft. Riley, sheriff's officers and city police.

Main speakers at the rally were John Upton, head of the Kansas City chapter of Vietnam Veterans Against the War; Louis Font of Kansas City, Kan., a 1968 West Point graduate who recently was discharged from the Army as a conscientious objector, and Andrew Pulley, an organizer of GIs Against the War.

The first class of cadets at the Air Force Academy was graduated in June, 1959.

Seeking Permanent Rate Hike

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. Postal Service went to the stand today in an attempt to justify and make permanent the postage increases it already has put into effect temporarily.

Postal Service accountants and lawyers were the scheduled leadoff witnesses as the independent Postal Rate Commission opened hearings expected to last into the summer.

The hearings mark an historic moment of sorts in the nearly two centuries of the U.S. mails: For the first time since 1792, the price of stamps and other postage will be set not by Congress but outside the political arena.

The first mail-cost increases since Congress boosted the cost of first class postage to six cents in 1967 went into effect at midnight Saturday, despite attempts to stop them in U.S. District Court, the Court of Appeals and the Supreme Court.

Surface and airmail stamps now cost eight cents and 11 cents, respectively, and postcards six cents. Airmail cards went up to nine cents.

Charges for second and third class postage were increased by 20 to 30 per cent and special delivery rates were increased by one third.

Parcel post was raised an average of 15 per cent last November, and is not involved in the current situation.

Under last year's postal reform legislation, which created the corporate-like Postal Service and the independent, five-member Postal Rate Commission, the cost of running the mails must be spread equally and equitably among its users.

According to the law, the rate commission must recommend rates to the Postal Service's board of governors. The governors on Feb. 1 sent the rate commission a proposed, $1.45 billion-a-year rate package, hoping that the commission would like it and recommend it right back. However, the law also requires the commission take testimony and evidence from the mail users who foot the bill and from a special section of the commission that represents the general public.

Some 57 organizations representing big mailers have signed up to be heard, including the Magazine Publishers Association, the American Newspapers Publishers Association and the Direct Mail Advertisers Association.

Murder Charges Reduced By Court

Delano Roosevelt Simmons, Cooper County, was sentenced to a three-year term in custody of the state Department of Corrections in Pettis County Circuit Court Monday after he pleaded guilty to an amended charge of manslaughter and the habitual criminal act.

The case was tried here on a change of venue from Cooper County.

The amended charge includes a 1952 rape incident in Clay County, a 1955 check forgery in Saline County and a Feb. 21, 1969 shooting incident in Cooper County in which Arthur Daniel Buoydston was killed.

Simmons was originally charged with first degree murder.

The court ordered that credit be given for the 30 days he has already spent in jail.

Enemy's Missiles Are Fired

SAIGON (AP) — A North Vietnamese battery fired two missiles at a U.S. gunship plane 23 miles inside Laos Sunday, and another SAM site threatened a flight of American fighter-bombers.

None of the U.S. planes were hit. One of the jet fighter-bombers attacked one of the SAM sites with unknown results, the U.S. Command said.

A spokesman, Maj. Charles Johnson, said his records indicated it was the first time the Soviet-supplied missiles had been fired at one of the AC130 gunships, a four-engine converted transport loaded with special electronic equipment to detect truck traffic on the Ho Chi Minh trail. Johnson said, however, that enemy ground fire brought down an AC130 in the lower panhandle of Laos on April 22, 1970, and its 10 crewmen were listed as missing.

The AC130 on Sunday presumably was on the prowl for North Vietnamese trucks when it was fired on.

The missiles came from a battery in the vicinity of the Ban Karai pass, on the North Vietnamese border about 31 miles northwest of the DMZ, Johnson said. But he said there was no U.S. retaliation to the attack.

The hour of the attack was not reported, but the AC130s usually fly at night because their special devices can seek out trucks in the darkness. The prop-driven plane is a version of the Lockheed C130 Hercules cargo and troop carrier with a maximum speed of 360 miles an hour. The AC130 and another gunship, the AC119, have been credited with destroying more than 100 trucks during one night's attacks along the Ho Chi Minh trail.

In the other air section, three U.S. Navy A7 fighter-bombers were operating against the Ho Chi Minh trail 87 miles northwest of the DMZ when the radar system of a SAM site five miles inside North Vietnam began tracking them preparatory to firing, Johnson said.

One of the A7s fired one missile at the site with unknown results, and the three planes returned safely to the carrier Kitty Hawk in the Tonkin gulf.

It was the 38th so-called protective reaction strike this year against anti-aircraft defenses in North Vietnam.

In other war action:

The enemy fired five rockets at a U.S. helicopter base at Lai Khe, 30 miles north of Saigon, and slammed 10 mortars into a field position of troops of the 173rd Airborne Brigade on the coastal plain 265 miles farther north. Field reports said some Americans were killed and wounded and some aircraft were damaged.

U.S. and South Vietnamese aircraft pounded North Vietnamese and Viet Cong positions in eastern Cambodia in support of two new South Vietnamese along a 60-mile stretch of border ranging from 50 miles west to 100 miles northwest of Saigon. Allied communiques said 41 North Vietnamese and Viet Cong troops were killed, and no South Vietnamese casualties were reported.

Man Is Held After Woman Is Found Shot

Sandra D. Cochran, 19, 120 East Jefferson, was admitted to Bothwell Hospital around 3:50 a.m. Monday after being shot in the foot.

According to Miss Cochran's statement to police, an unidentified man entered her home by the front door, shot her and left by the back door. She was reported in satisfactory condition.

Floyd Fulcher, 22, 405 West Clay, reported the incident to police and said he had heard the shot and rushed into the residence and saw that Miss Cochran was injured. Fulcher said he saw someone running through Miss Cochran's back yard following the shot.

Fulcher was kept in custody by Sedalia police for investigation of discharging a firearm in the city. He was confined in the city jail.

Fires In The City

Sedalia firemen went out on three calls over the weekend but only slight damage was reported in one case, and a false alarm in another.

A defective transformer on an electric furnace at the Don Timbers residence, 1214 South Osage, at 11:25 a.m. Saturday caused slight damage. There was no fire.

A false alarm sent firemen to Sacred Heart School, Third and Vermont, at 11:47 p.m. Saturday. The alarm had been accidentally tripped.

Sewer gas, which caught fire at 2:55 p.m. Sunday, sent firemen to 1926 East Sixth. No damage was reported. The Missouri Public Service Co. was notified.

Sheriff's Report

Dale Diefenbach, 815 West Fifth, was released from the Pettis County jail Saturday on a $1,000 bond, Sheriff Emmett Fairfax said Monday. He is charged with possession of stimulant drugs.

Diefenbach was arrested April 26 for speeding and later held in custody for investigation of possession of stimulant drugs.

Area

He indicated he believed runoff and other small streams can feed Flat Creek a considerable amount in that distance.

Herb Taylor, Sedalia Water Department manager, said the department had been pushing for the reservoir project since 1959, although the city's water supply is adequate at present.

Taylor listed two reasons the department considers the project necessary. First, to prevent any future flooding of the city's water pumping station, such as in 1951 when the city went without water for 24 hours; and second, as an expansion of the city water supply. Taylor reported the city's demand for water was over 150 million gallons higher in 1971 than 1959.

Taylor said the department preferred the site closer to the city limits, because it allowed the possibility of a direct pipeline to the dam site in the future.

The Corps says the main purpose of the Tuesday meeting is to "exchange information concerning the study, the water resource and related problems involved, and possible solutions."

A recent release said the Corps hoped to determine at the meeting "the desires and needs of affected or interested parties..." in the Flat Creek area.

If the sentiments of Green Ridge area farmers are any indication, viewpoints other than favorable can be expected at Tuesday's meeting.

Police Report

Carl Walter, 525 North Grand, an employee of the Dutch Maid Coin-O-Matic Laundry, 621 West Main, reported to police at 10:40 p.m. Saturday that the business had been burglarized and a box of candy, valued at $3, was taken and $50 damage was done to a storage room door.

Police discovered a door open at Ried's Grocery, Fourth and Emmet, at 2:20 a.m. Sunday and after investigating learned that an undetermined amount of cigarettes had been taken.

Police found entry to the building had been gained through the back door. It was not determined whether the door was left open or had been forced open.

Approve Benefit Increase

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House Ways and Means Committee approved today a five per cent across-the-board increase in Social Security benefits to be effective June 1, 1972.

The benefit was inserted at the last minute in the committee's big social security-welfare bill, which was then approved without further change.

The House is expected to act on the measure early next month. The new increase would come in addition to a 10 per cent increase effective this year and a 15 per cent increase that went into effect last year.

The committee also retained in the bill a provision for automatic increases in benefits when the cost of living rises three per cent or more in a year.

However, the measure provides that no automatic increase can take place in the year following a legislative increase. So, adoption of the five per cent raise in 1972 would mean that no additional automatic raise could go into effect before 1974.

The increase was estimated to provide an additional $2.1 billion for Social Security recipients in the first full year of its operation.

There would be no immediate increase in taxes above the increases that already had been written into the bill, and which would mean a maximum additional tax next year of $145 on a worker earning $10,200 or more and on his employer.

The committee voted 13 to 12 for the increase.

Hospital Auxiliary Is Formed

A group of Sedalia women representing civic, social and church organizations decided Monday morning at a meeting at the Farm and Home Building to organize a hospital auxiliary for Bothwell Memorial Hospital. The decision came following talks by Dr. T. J. Hopkins, chief of staff; Don Feedback, hospital administrator; and Mrs. Claude Lambirth, a member of the auxiliary steering committee.

Mrs. Elmer Van Dyke welcomed about 25 women who attended and introduced the speakers.

Feedback stressed that the board of trustees and the medical staff of the hospital were anxious to cooperate in the formation of an auxiliary. He told of the selection of ten women by Dr. Hopkins and himself to represent a cross-section of the community. These women were named to help lay the groundwork for the organization.

Dr. Hopkins also expressed the interest of the medical staff and emphasized the possible effectiveness of an auxiliary as a public relations group.

Mrs. Claude Lambirth reported the steering committee had visited Jefferson City, Marshall and Warrensburg to observe the operation of hospital auxiliaries there. She pointed out these organizations emphasized volunteer services both in and out of the hospital, fund raising and public relations.

Following a short discussion, the decision to form the auxiliary was made and Mrs. Lambirth was elected temporary chairman. Mrs. Lambirth will now appoint a bylaws committee to write a workable set of bylaws, and a nominating committee to present a slate of officers at the organizational meeting June 8, when they will be elected.

Membership in the auxiliary will be open to the public.

Troop Cut Chances Discussed

MOSCOW (AP) — Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko and U.S. Ambassador Jacob D. Beam met today to discuss the possibility of a mutual reduction of forces in Europe, the U.S. Embassy reported.

An embassy spokesman said Beam asked for the meeting in connection with Communist party chief Leonid I. Brezhnev's appeal last Friday to start negotiations on reducing troops and armaments in central Europe.

The Embassy said Gromyko and Beam met for about 30 minutes at the Foreign Ministry.

Brezhnev said Friday in Tbilisi, the capital of Soviet Georgia, that: "Some NATO countries show an evident interest and even nervousness concerning reductions of armed forces and armaments in Central Europe."

"Their spokesmen ask whose forces are to be reduced—foreign or national, what armaments, nuclear or conventional? If anything is not clear to somebody we are ready to make it clear."

Predict Lull In Mideast

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Israeli analysts predict a lull in negotiations with Egypt as a result of the uncertain political situation in Cairo following President Anwar Sadat's purge of his Egyptian rivals.

They said until the situation in Cairo clarifies, Washington would be unable to pursue its campaign for an Egyptian-Israeli agreement to permit re-opening of the Suez Canal.

Diplomatic maneuvers also will be hampered for the rest of this month because Premier Golda Meir will be visiting Scandinavia, and Foreign Minister Abba Eban will be touring Africa.

Israeli leaders took a restrained attitude toward Sadat's arrest of rivals he accused of plotting against him. The Israeli cabinet heard reports Sunday on Egypt's political turmoil from Defense Minister Moshe Dayan and the army intelligence chief, Lt. Gen. Haron Yarin.

No details of the cabinet discussion was disclosed. But specialists on Arab affairs agreed that Sadat's purge was prompted by internal political friction and not by his recent attempts to reach agreement with Israel on the canal. However, they would not speculate on how Sadat's shakeup may affect efforts toward a settlement.

The uncertainty felt by policy makers in Jerusalem was reflected in the lack of political declarations for or against Sadat.

In Cairo, Sadat hit back at critics of his efforts to reach a peaceful settlement with Israel.

"We are seeking peace based on justice, not peace at any price as some people think," Sadat said in an address to Moslem religious leaders.

"We are following three parallel paths, the military buildup which is the basis, the political struggle and the construction of a modern state based on faith and science."

"We must purge our lands of the Israeli enemy."

The official Middle-East News Agency said Sadat continued his housecleaning by firing Communications Minister Kamal Henei Abadir and replacing him with Abdel Malek Saad, an engineer. The president also appointed Gen. Saad el Shazli chief of staff to replace Gen. Mohammed Sadek, who was elevated to war minister and commander in chief.

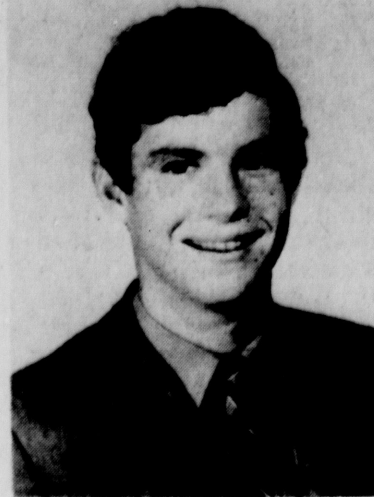

Sadat dismissed six officials of the information ministry, and a number of police officials in the ministry of interior were expected to be pensioned off.

Public demonstrations in support of Sadat continued. Thousands of workers marched in Cairo, and peasants came in from the surrounding countryside to express their approval of his actions. Public rallies were held across the country, speakers at them praised Sadat and attacked his opponents.

The Israeli government announced the appointment of an Arab as deputy minister of health, the highest office given to an Arab in the Jewish state.

Mulches: Handy Garden Tool

Farm Roundup

Mulches have been used in growing plants for many centuries. Still, many people do not take advantage of this useful gardening method. In the home vegetable garden, as well as around shrubs, mulches can save labor and improve plant growth.

Mulches smother weeds, conserve soil moisture, break the force of rain, allow more moisture absorption, and prevent the soil from forming a hard crust. Mulches cut down erosion on slopes and act as an insulating layer that reduces rapid changes in soil temperature.

Aluminum foil as a mulch has been reported to repel flying aphids thus reducing their infestation and the spread of certain virus diseases they carry.

Mulches also have some shortcomings which can be overcome if they are understood. Most common is the nitrogen deficiency that develops in the soil as organic mulches break down. When this occurs plants grow poorly and foliage becomes light yellowish-green if additional nitrogen is not added.

When applying organic mulch such as wood chips, sawdust, ground corn cobs, straw, or shredded bark, nitrogen can be mixed directly into the mulch. Many materials can be used.

The one to select is best determined by local availability, cost, and personal preference.

Listed below are some materials to mix with mulches to add nitrogen. Select only one. Add the quantity suggested to each bushel of organic material applied:

Ammonium sulfate, 1 cup; ammonium nitrate, 1/2 cup; complete fertilizer (such as 12-12-12) 2 1/2 cups; urea, 3/4 cup; and activated sewage sludge, 3 cups.

The nitrogen in some of these materials is easily leached out by rains. Therefore, it is best to apply half this amount when the mulch is applied and the other with the use of hay, straw, and straw manure. For this reason these materials should be composted, aged, and kept moist so weed seeds in them germinate before they are applied to the garden. If this is not done they may actually make the weed problem worse.

Grass clippings are readily available to many gardeners. They should not be used directly on the garden as they form a dense mat which prevents good water penetration. They also attract flies and produce excessive heat as they decay. Decompose them on a compost heap or in plastic bags before adding clippings to the garden as a mulch.

Analysis of Corn Belt Shows Future Promise

WASHINGTON (AP) — An Agriculture Department analysis of Corn Belt farming says family-sized operations of 500 acres or smaller show considerable "staying power" but finds full-time producers still stand the best chance of survival.

No. 2 in the line of likely survival are so-called part-time farmers with high income from either their land or non-farm sources, says the report. It was published in the current issue of the "Farm Index" issued by the department's Economic Research Service.

The report was based on studies of the major Corn Belt states of Ohio, Illinois, Indiana, Iowa and Missouri, including surveys of income tax statistics of 692,000 individuals who claimed agricultural profits or losses in 1966.

"The full-timers generally manage units of sufficient size to provide the family with full employment and an acceptable level of income," the report said. "Moreover, the net farm income is great enough to enable investment in farm expansion."

The report said family-sized units in the states are typically about 500 acres or smaller.

"It is unlikely—in the next couple of decades at least—that they will completely give way to 'large' farms or those with over 1,000 acres," the report said.

Operators in the "full-time" category manage assets with a current value of $200,000 or more, the report said. A typical unit has at least 300 acres of corn or in combination with soybeans plus an intensive livestock program.

Most of the operators of such units are 30 to 55 years of age and many involve one or more of their children or operate in partnership with another farmer, the report said.

The second-ranked group, in terms of survival, are part-time farmers who frequently operate 100 to 500 acres, particularly near large cities in the eastern Corn Belt. Many at one time had planned to become full-time farmers.

"But having acquired various academic or technical skills, they now find they can make more money from off-farm jobs," the report said. "So they usually get hired labor to handle part of their crop enterprise and do the rest of the work themselves, perhaps with the help of their children."

Still another category involves people who own but do not operate farms. These were classed as "part farm-income" farmers and include retired farmers, widows and heirs.

"Often they are professional workers who also own farm real estate that they rent to operators," the report said.

The staying power of the part-time farmer and the part farm-income groups is mainly in the fact that they are not completely dependent on farm income for their livelihoods.

At the bottom in the survival rankings are the low-income farmers, perhaps as many as half of the total, according to the study. A large share of them are expected to quit farming in the next 20 years.

"The operators are usually over 45 years old. Many are near retirement age. They generally lack sufficient incomes, assets, skills or motivation to increase the size of their operations," the report said.

Some of the younger low-income farmers may one day become operators of larger, successful units, the report said.

Farm

half about four to six weeks later.

If an existing mulch is causing nitrogen deficiency, about two pounds of a complete garden fertilizer added to each 100 square feet of mulched area should correct the condition.

Mulches should be applied two to three inches deep to keep down weeds. It will normally take three to four bushels of mulch to cover 100 square feet. Weed seeds can be introduced inorganic materials such as black polyethylene, fiberglass mats, and crushed stone are also useful as mulches. They do a good job of keeping down weeds and holding soil moisture. However, they do not improve soil condition through constant breakdown as do organic mulches.

The summer mulch should be applied in mid-spring when the soil has warmed up enough for active root growth.

In Soybean Field

New Population Center

MASCOUTAH, Ill. (AP) — Lawrence D. Friederich said he had no idea how much hoopla would be connected with having a spot in his soybean field designated as the population center of the United States.

Maurice Stans, secretary of commerce, spoke Sunday at a "center of population" celebration near here. He looked down to the end of the reviewing stand, pointed to the 54-year-old Friederich and said: "You are Mr. America."

Friederich's sunburned face took on a deeper shade of red and some neighbors began joshing him.

After a helicopter trip to the farm, Stans and Friederich stood before the survey marker and Stans told him:

"Your responsibility is to be guardian of that historic marker." Stans told Lawrence and his wife Esther they were "famous people," and asked Lawrence for a comment.

"I forgot my speech," said the German farmer as he stood in his field, under a hot sun. He was dressed in a dark suit and tie. Then he said he was proud and "that's about it."

It all started more than a month ago when people from the U. S. Census Bureau told Friederich computers had digested 1970 census figures and calculated that his farm, five miles southeast of here, was the mid-point for population. In 1960 the spot was near Centralia, Ill., some 27 miles to the northeast. Back in 1790 it was near Baltimore, Md.

After the official announcement the telephone started ringing off the wall. Friederich said he lost a lot of time on his corn planting by walking from the fields on his 176-acre farm to the house to answer hundreds of calls.

Newsman and camera crews invaded the field. Fortunately, it was unplanted.

Annual MCB Parade, NFO 'Hog Vacation' Picnic Scheduled

Ends After 2 Weeks

FRISTOE — The Community Betterment Association here will hold its annual picnic, parade and horseshow this Saturday.

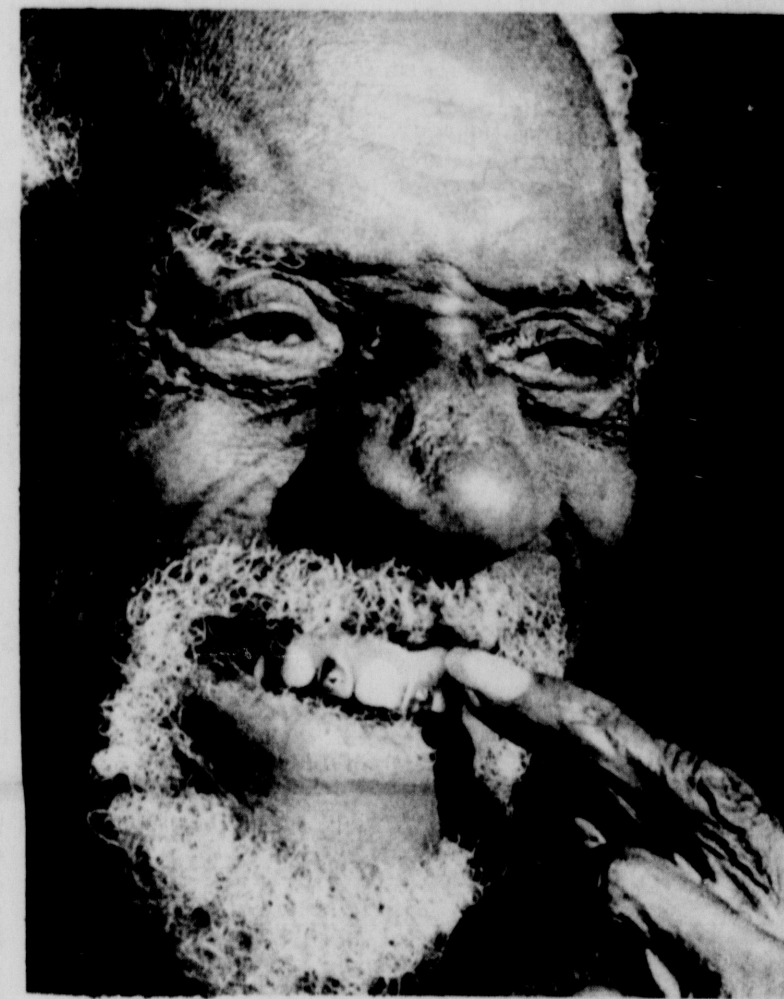

Twenty units will participate in the parade, including saddle clubs from Fristoe, Climax Springs, Warsaw, Lincoln and Osceola.

A free ham and bean dinner will be held from noon to 2 p.m., the parade follows at 3 p.m. and the horseshow will be held at 7:30 p.m.

National Farmers Organization members have declared an end to their "hog vacation" and will begin marketing hogs again Monday, a local NFO spokesman said.

The NFO declared the nationwide vacation two weeks ago in an attempt to create a greater demand for hogs and higher pork prices.

The action did produce a small increase in pork prices, it was reported.

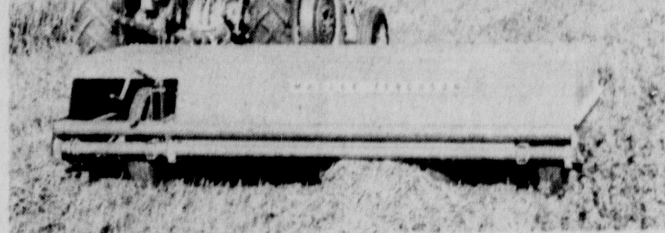

Gets New Teeth

Sylvester Magee of Columbia, Miss., who, records indicate, will be 130 years old at the end of this month, proudly shows off his new upper teeth. The plate has two gold teeth, each set with a diamond. A jeweler donated the stones to a dentist who made the plate as a gift to Magee, who was born a slave in North Carolina in 1841. (UPI)

MASSEY-FERGUSON SAVES HAYING DAYS AND DOLLARS TWO WAYS!!

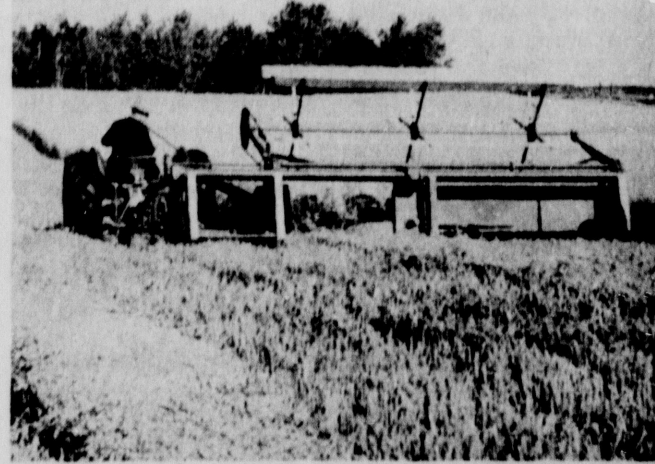

FIRST - WITH THE MF 61 MOWER-CONDITIONER

Swinging knives of the MF 61 Mower-Conditioner cut grass and legume forage crops for fast, every drying. You can take a 7' cut through tough, tangled stands. Swinging knives cut stems close to the ground, then act as impellers to carry the plants over the rotor. Coarse lower stems are cracked during this action making them easier to dry. Little shattering of leaves takes place. Forage comes out in condition for fast drying with minimum loss of feeding quality. You can place the forage in a full-width swath or adjust the deflector to build a fluffy windrow. Also use the MF 61 to clip pastures, mow weeds and chop corn stalks.

SECOND - WITH THE MF 30 PULL-TYPE SWATHER

When the grain is ready, get it into the swath fast with the MF 30 Pull-Type Swather. This economical outfit will cut up to 80 acres each day. The crop is laid into the swath gently and evenly so that it will cure and pick up better. The MF 30 is built to take the pressure of fast work over thousands of acres. Its tough backbone-type frame is made of 4-in. steel pipe. Massey-Ferguson's special center knife drive provides smooth, rapid action for fast, clean cutting. Sealed antifriction bearings wear longer and require no greasing. Hitch the MF 30 to any tractor without standard attachments. Try one soon and see for yourself how the MF 30 Swather can speed your harvest. Available in 12 ft and 16 ft. widths.

Art Kept Alive

Despite the growing popularity of decals and glue-on lettering devices, there are still some artistic sign-painters around. Here, Robert R. Moore, 323 West Fourth, takes the time and patience to paint a sign at Ewing Funeral Home, 117 West Seventh. Moore said that he has been painting signs ever since he graduated from Smith-Cotton High School in 1930. He conceded that the easy availability of ready-made lettering has hurt his business, although he was quick to point out that painting is more than a money-making activity. "I pretty near love to paint," he said.

Tension-Caused Spasms Can Be Pain in the Neck

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

Dear Dr. Lamb — What causes me to have tightness and soreness in the back of my neck at the base of my head. At times I give a quick jerk with my head and it makes a popping noise and it relieves the pressure for a short while. I am inclined to be very nervous. It comes on me more if I am upset over anything. When I was 20, I received a hard blow on my chin, and the trouble came on shortly afterwards. I am 48 now and wonder if that could have been the start. Could you tell me what I should do to relieve the condition and what doctor I should see for some help? At my age it will be bothering me more.

Dear Reader — As you describe your pain, it is probably due to muscle spasm. The muscles in the neck contract and cause limitation of motion and give rise to pain. When you move your head and stretch the muscle sufficiently, the spasm or cramp is relieved and the pain may disappear. This is similar to stretching the calf muscle if you have a cramp in the leg.

It is true that individuals with repeated episodes of muscle spasms are more apt to have them when they are experiencing tension. There are a lot of things, however, which can contribute to the problem, and apparently you have been having difficulties for almost 28 years.

Posture can be a contributing factor, if you have one leg which is considerably shorter than the other, the entire skeleton will be out of line and will change the pull on the various muscles along the spine all the way up to the neck.

Such an underlying postural defect can constantly irritate the muscles and make them more susceptible to spasms or cramping. Disorders of this sort can be corrected, or helped, with a heel lift (a pad under the heel or increasing the thickness of the heel of the shoe) in many cases.

You should see a specialist in physical medicine. Your family doctor, county or state medical society can give you the name of a reputable specialist in physical medicine near your home. Underlying disorders, like postural defects, usually can be corrected.

In the meantime, for recurrent episodes, you may soak the neck muscles with a hot towel until the muscles are warmed and then try to move and rotate the head as much as possible, thereby relieving muscle spasms. That is about as far as you should go without having an examination.

Aspirin, which is remarkably good at relieving pain, is sometimes helpful in making these conditions tolerable.

Avoid anyone who wishes to manipulate your head. Sudden, sharp twists and turns of the head have been known to cause dislocation of the cervical (neck) spine, causing severe injuries and even death. Be certain that you see a reputable physician for this type of problem.

Two Vietnam Tours Not Enough

By JERRY T. BAULCH
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Michael Haley is getting his discharge from the military next month after a second combat tour in Vietnam, but the Army is marking his debt to his country as unpaid.

The service says Spec. 4 Haley owes $3,724.99 because of a financial mess resulting from a five-month wait for orders a year ago.

Until the situation is straightened out, Haley is giving up his salary except for $40 a month for his wife. "He's been told he can have $25 a month for himself but so far he hasn't requested it," the Army said.

Haley's pay, the Army says, is $330.90 a month plus $65 for combat duty. As a Spec. 4 with less than four years service, it is mandatory that his dependents get $40 of that amount. The Army provides them another $130.60 not counted in his basic pay.

Haley, 23, of Champaign, Ill., stirred things up when he told an Associated Press reporter in Vietnam last year the Army was asking him to return the money he was paid during the 128 days it listed him as absent without leave—a period in which he says he waited in vain for duty orders.

As a result of the publicity, the Army began looking into Haley's tale of woe.

He had finished a one-year tour in Vietnam in 1967 and came home with hepatitis. After five months in military hospitals he was told to go home and await orders.

Haley says a personnel officer told him he would be stationed at Ft. Carson, Colo., about Sept. 1 of that year, so—without orders—he moved his family there, rented a house and reported for duty.

He said he was told he couldn't report without orders, "to go home and wait."

After trying for five months to trace the orders while shuffling between Illinois and Ft. Carson, he finally had a blackout at the fort, Haley said, and found himself back home. Meanwhile, his orders arrived.

At that point, he contacted an aide to Rep. William L. Springer, R-Ill., who had been sympathetic to his problems, and was advised to report again to Carson, which he did.

He was finally processed Feb. 2, 1970. The Army charged him with "excess leave" for the period Sept. 3, 1969 to Jan. 7, 1970, and as AWOL during his "blackout" trip from Jan. 13 to Feb. 1. He was told he had to pay back the money he received, meanwhile, for the five months.

Shortly afterward, Haley volunteered for his second tour in Vietnam, went there last November and told his story to The AP. Soon thereafter, the Army said it had goofed "due to administrative error."

So the Sept. 3, 1969 to Jan. 6, 1970 absence was changed from "excess leave" to "authorized absence—not chargeable as leave." However, the "blackout" period remained AWOL and his release date was set back from May 3 to June 3 this year.

But then the Army found that during the months he was wandering, Haley obtained from Chanute Air Force Base, Ill., pay which the Air Force neglected to report to the Army.

Also it found that allotments Haley had made through the Army Finance Center in Indianapolis also were not deducted from his unit pay file.

Then it found that on the basis of promotion orders sent from Ft. Carson to Vietnam and later ruled invalid, Haley was paid the rate for a Spec. 5 rather than a Spec. 4. So he was charged for another $545.

The Army said Tuesday that Haley's debt at that point amounted to $5,813.27. The amount he had paid back under the original mixup, was credited on his debt, leaving him owing $3,724.99.

This he began paying back in February. At about $365 a month it would take him at least 10 months to clear the books, and he can only make four payments before his discharge. People in his hometown are helping out with a collection in his behalf and there is a chance the military may forgive some of the money.

The Army can't keep him beyond his June 3 discharge since he's accused of no wrongdoing. But though he comes home soon from Vietnam, his woes with the military apparently are far from over.

NATO Power Play Seen In Troop Cutback Talk

By FRED S. HOFFMAN
AP Military Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of Defense Melvin R. Laird may use a Senate move to halve U.S. troop strength in Europe as a prod to obtain greater contributions by NATO allies toward improving alliance forces, Pentagon sources say.

Although Laird is strongly opposed to the troop reduction, the sources say they expect Laird to cite the Senate move as one of the realities allied defense ministers must recognize as they weigh proposals to modernize and strengthen NATO.

The meeting of defense ministers will come next week after the Senate acts on a proposal by Senate Leader Mike Mansfield to reduce the present U.S. garrison in Europe to 150,000 men.

Whatever the Senate outcome, Laird could use it as ammunition.

If the Senate votes for the amendment, the issue would remain unsettled until tested in the House.

If the Senate rejects the proposal, Mansfield moves could still serve as a warning that Congress may force a drastic U.S. pullback unless the European allies chip in more and ease the U.S. financial burden.

Pentagon officials say Laird's chief concern at the NATO meetings will be to push for additional commitments to strengthen the alliance through modernizing equipment and correcting longstanding deficiencies, rather than increasing the number of troops.

The emphasis is on burden-sharing in paying for improvements such as the agreement by NATO members to increase their contributions to the joint defense system by about $1 billion over five years.

Among other things, officials said, Laird would like allied leaders to commit stated percentages of their countries' gross national products to bolstering the alliance's military power.

Also near the top of Laird's list, sources said, will be an effort to persuade the allies to increase their naval commitments in the Mediterranean area, where the Soviet Union has increased its presence in recent years.

Another top priority item in NATO planning is construction of shelters in Europe to shield military aircraft from being knocked out on the ground. NATO has earmarked some $250 million for such shelters.

HEW Plan Criticized

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — School board members are sharply critical of the desegregation plan for local schools filed by the Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

Nixon administration officials in Washington emphasized Friday that the basics of the plan which includes extensive cross-town busing were proposed by the Austin board.

But the school board president, Will Davis, said: "It seems they have taken our plans, our grouping of schools and instead of leaving it on a temporary basis, made it permanent."

He also was unhappy that the plan was filed with U.S. District Court before it was shown to the board.

"I think this is the shabbiest kind of treatment," Davis said.

The plan was the first filed by HEW since the Supreme Court ruled last month in a Charlotte, N.C., case that busing and racial ratios are permissible desegregation methods.

It could become a prototype plan for other Southern cities and abandon the Nixon ad-

Children's Programming Sees Changing Format

By JERRY BUCK
AP Television-Radio Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Back in 1955 when Bob Keeshan first put on his baggy Captain Kangaroo uniform, people called children's programs "kiddie shows."

Things have changed a lot since then. Keeshan has slimmed down to an almost svelte 180 pounds and is about to shed his ill-fitting costume for modern mufti.

Children's programming is undergoing an equal transformation. "Sesame Street" is one of the most admired, imitated and talked-about programs on television, and the subject in general is getting a lot of attention.

The television networks are manifesting a greater interest in quality programming, and changes are under way, though the wheels grind slow and Saturday mornings remain the only province of children.

Saturday morning is getting another facelift in the fall. CBS is reviving its classic recreations of historical events, "You Are There," with Walter Cronkite as anchorman. ABC is developing "Curiosity Shop," which will encompass a wide range of subjects of interest to children. NBC will have "Take a Giant Step," an entertainment and children's talk show.

Dean Burch, chairman of the Federal Communications Commission, has expressed publicly and in private to the network presidents his desire for better programs. Action for Children's Television, a Boston-based group, is in the vanguard of activist viewer groups demanding from the networks—and petitioning the FCC—more programs related to the needs of children and for the elimination of all commercials.

From those lean days, when few people gave much serious thought to children's television, to the present, Keeshan's "Captain Kangaroo" on CBS has been built around the educational values now being sought for other shows. His show is unspectacular and has a budget about one-fourth the size of "Sesame Street," yet five mornings a week he attracts an audience estimated at between eight and nine million.

"Bob was fighting the battle for better children's programming long before it became popular, and it is popular now," said David Connell, producer of "Sesame Street" and former producer of Keeshan's show. "He has been a milestone, quietly crusading for better programming."

Keeshan said, "I haven't got a martyr complex, but when we came on the air we certainly had a novel approach to children's programming and to commercials. Now they tell me people are coming around to our way of thinking.

"In adult terms, Captain Kangaroo is a communicator. For the child, he must entertain. The adult mind usually classifies the material we use to entertain as educational. We don't like to draw the line because we think it can be both."

"We feel any new experience for a child is educational. On the other hand, we don't feel you can set out to educate without being a communicator. It must be presented in a way to attract the child so that he will sit and watch us and absorb the material."

Keeshan, 43, whose gentle avuncular manner extends offscreen, said he shares the concern of the viewer groups working for better children's programming—he doesn't think there's much around that's good—but he does not share the group's proposals for achieving the goal.

"I think the government and the consumer groups are terribly naive when they look beyond the networks for good children's television," he said. "The stations can't afford it. I don't think any good children's shows are going to come from the local level, either commercial or educational."

"I don't think we can look to the government to finance programs much beyond their contribution to 'Sesame Street.' That brings us to the networks, and I think we have to urge the networks to do more qualitative children's programs."

Swinging around in his chair in his dimly lighted office in the CBS Broadcast Center where his show is taped, Keeshan said, "I am disturbed when I hear people say we should take the commercials out of children's shows. If you do that you'll also take the networks out of children's television."

Keeshan said he felt many commercials aimed at children are offensive and come on with a hard sell. On his own show he said he occasionally does a commercial himself rather than permit an offensive commercial to be broadcast. It's a practice he said he does not like but feels compelled to do until a stronger industry-wide code is adopted.

When first conceived, Captain Kangaroo was a museum guide who had big pockets like a kangaroo. He simply showed things to children in the museum.

"That's not valid anymore," Keeshan said. "We think of him now as a friend who visits. It's a close and personal thing."

Keeshan and Kangaroo soon will be leaving the Treasure House. Plans are under way for a new set and a different concept that will move the show along a little faster. Keeshan, who has lost 55 pounds, will shed the old captain's uniform for modern garb, perhaps a blazer and slacks.

Polly's Pointers

Indoor Herb Garden Sweetens Home Air

By POLLY CRAMER

DEAR POLLY — As we are in the herb business, my aunt in Nebraska called me here in Texas for an answer for Bobbie who is interested in starting an indoor herb garden. A window box or big pot of pineapple mint, sweet woodruff, lemon thyme and lemon balm would thrive in a sunny window and then be used in tea. For seasoning salads and meats, I suggest rosemary, chives, parsley, sage, summer savory, sweet marjoram, thyme and basil.

Seeds for basil, summer savory and parsley could be planted in August but I think it is best to buy plants for the others, as they grow slowly. Two plants of each would grow all a normal family would want. Sweet chevril is another herb that can be raised in the house during the winter and in the yard in summer. It should be planted every four months. With all the sweet-smelling herbs that can be grown in the house, people will wonder what air freshener you use. Hope this helps Bobbie. — MARCIEL

Polly's Problem

DEAR POLLY — I would like suggestions for something that could be made with a worn-out plastic clothes basket. I find such baskets have short lives for their intended use and I now have both a yellow and a white one that I hate to throw away. — MRS. E. S.

DEAR POLLY — Whenever we buy an appliance with a one- or five-year guarantee I write the purchase date on a strip of masking tape and attach this to an inconspicuous place on the appliance. It is out of sight of others but easy for me to get to. This makes it easier and quicker to find the guarantee date when needed in a hurry. — MRS. E. L.

DEAR POLLY — I was given an old typewriter table which I painted and then put my portable sewing machine on it. The machine is too heavy for me to lift but now I can move it anywhere with ease. — MRS. W. R. G.

America's Elderly Forgotten People

Since May is Senior Citizens' Month, it is especially noteworthy that Sedalia's elderly have taken a step to organize themselves to the mutual benefit of all concerned.

The Sedalia community chapter of the American Association of Retired Persons (AARP) was recently formed here with an initial membership of about 50. Charter memberships will remain open until June 29.

Persons 55 and above may belong to AARP, whether they are actually retired or not. It is the largest organization of aged persons in the nation, and is devoted to serving its members in such areas as health, housing, transportation, employment and leisure activities.

There are more than 38 million Americans 55 and above alive today, and their numbers are growing daily as medical science extends the life span.

Sedalia has an unusually large number of elderly citizens, and it is only recently that other Sedalians have begun to be aware of their special problems. The construction of 50 public housing units for the elderly, as well as the current effort to obtain a community center that would appeal to older Sedalians, are two examples.

In today's youth-oriented "swinging" society, our elderly citizens have too often been shunted aside, the most common casualties on one side of the generation gap.

Many people today, in and out of government, are rethinking some of our old stereotyped beliefs about the aged. Beliefs like everyone should retire at 65, that retirement from job means retirement from life, that there is no place in today's society for the wisdom and knowledge that has accrued over a lifetime.

There is still plenty of room for all Sedalians to participate in this quiet revolution.

Holds Hearings

Kennedy Exposing U.S. Health Plight

By BRUCE BLOSSAT
NEA News Analyst

CLEVELAND (NEA) — A man emerged from the jam-packed room where a traveling Senate subcommittee had just finished taking 2½ hours' testimony on health care problems. Said he:

"Senator Kennedy was putting on a public relations show in there."

Exactly. That's the purpose of holding field hearings in a dozen U.S. cities, coast to coast. To highlight and dramatize the burdensome costs and often tragic consequences of the country's present health care system. And to build wide public support for some kind of health insurance to deal sweepingly with these difficulties.

Blossat

Ted Kennedy, subcommittee chairman, is, of course, the lead dog. There were two other senators there — Robert Taft of Ohio and Robert Packwood of Oregon. But would anyone like to argue that television cameras would have followed THEM around a hospital at midnight? Or that they would have filled a hearing room to the walls and captured headlines?

Kennedy means it when he says he is not a 1972 presidential candidate. But he also says candidly that he does not mind being mentioned, for the simple reason that it adds materially to the leverage he can apply to the causes he is pushing. Health insurance tops his list.

Neither he nor anyone else involved in pressing for better health care can expect to hear much that is new on a "health tour" of the nation. There were eight weeks of hearings in Washington this year and voluminous testimony in earlier inquiries in the previous Congress.

What the witnesses here and elsewhere do is to reinforce notions that already have taken deep root — that health care is outrageously expensive and getting more so every day, that health services in hospitals are often grossly inadequate, that there aren't enough doctors and nurses, that the poor usually get by far the worst of it.

The specifics here in Cleveland are individual to the city and its people, and yet very much like things heard in other places.

Hospital emergency rooms and outpatient clinics are today the great gathering places for many of the physically distressed. For the poor in the inner city, there is nowhere else to go, since doctors more and more shun the poverty neighborhoods.

A doctor at Cleveland Metropolitan General tells Kennedy that people in the outpatient area may wait from three to eight hours for attention. The average wait is three to four hours. Because doctors are too few, he frequently works until 2 a. m. or later.

Black mothers bringing their tiny babies to a hospital for a check-up find no waiting room, and sit with their infants on a line of benches along a narrow corridor.

Costs?

A man testifies before the subcommittee that his wife, suffering a cardiac arrest and then giving premature birth to a child, accumulated hospital and other charges totaling $20,000.

An elderly black woman in a wheelchair tells the senators she owed $12,750 after a series of operations for impaired leg circulation. Her husband is ill, too. How will she pay? Says she: "I haven't the faintest idea."

Another man says his wife, diabetic and gripped with a heart seizure, dies in a hospital while awaiting emergency treatment. A lad with acid burns on his legs waits three hours before a doctor sees him.

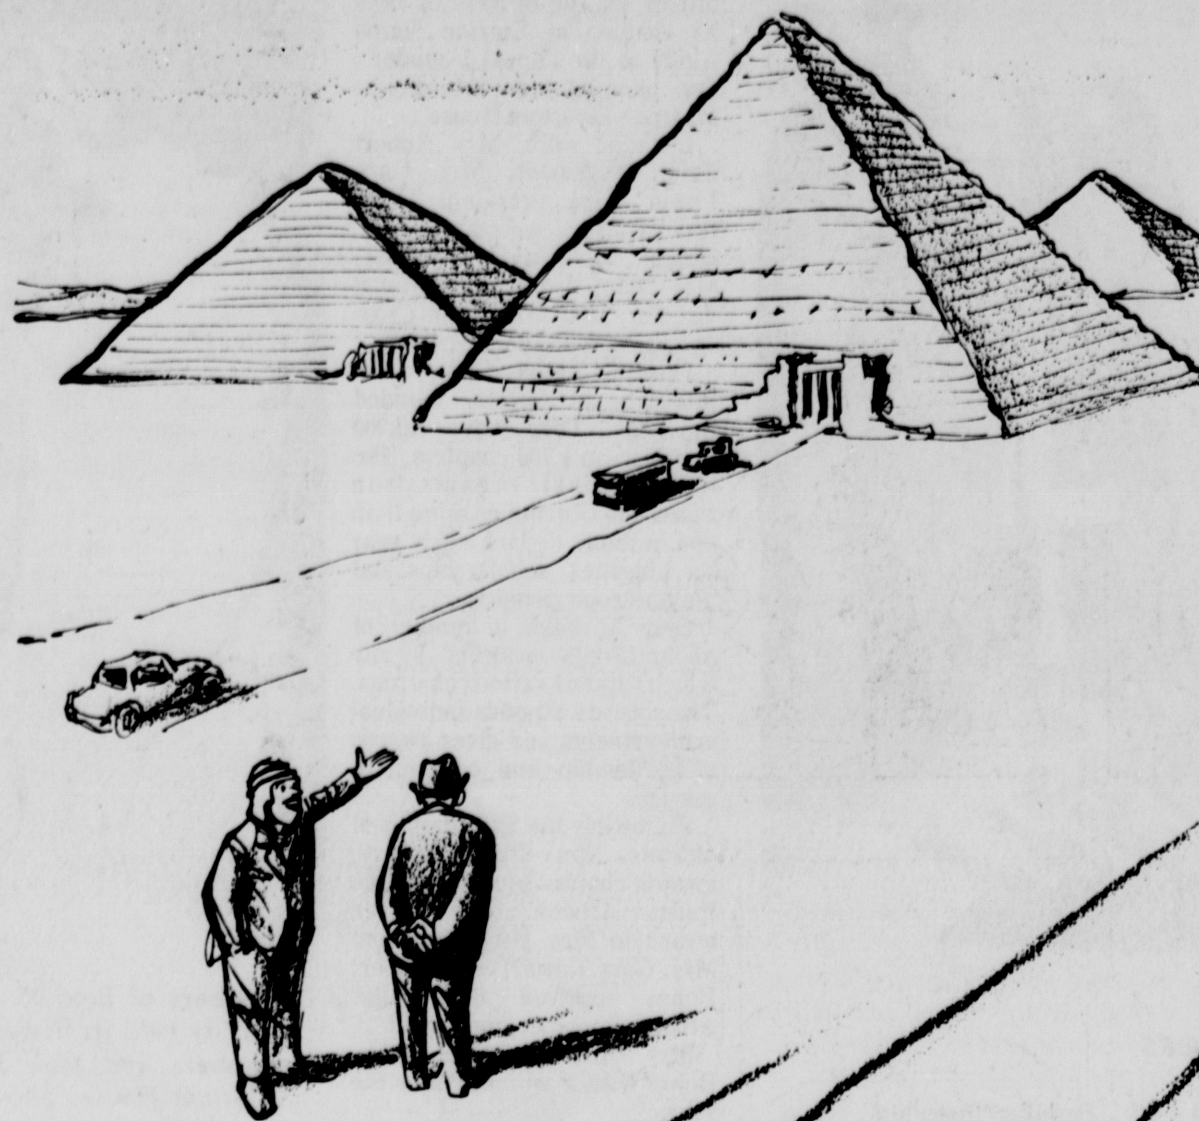

The good hospitals offer more sophisticated, more effective tests and treatment than ever, but these specialties are costly. And, meantime, the hospitals are swamped by tens of thousands who often need far simpler treatment. The load is bankrupting some institutions.

The doctors to ease the burden just aren't there. In California, more doctors die each year than are graduated from school. Some 130 rural U.S. counties and countless city neighborhoods have no physician at all. This great lack magnifies the crisis engulfing health care.

WORLD ALMANAC FACTS

After the Civil War, the word maverick was used for unbranded cattle found on the range. The name originated from Samuel Maverick, Texas lawyer, who had acquired some cattle in 1845. The World Almanac says. His help, however, were shiftless in branding the cattle, causing unbranded cattle in Texas to be called "one of Maverick's."

"THEY WERE A FAD OF THEIR TIME, LIKE AMERICAN PRESIDENTIAL LIBRARIES."

By JACK ANDERSON

WASHINGTON — The Navy is stuck with defective flight decks and other faulty helicopter facilities on more than 150 of its ships. The 740 drone helicopters built for the ships have either crashed, been crated and stored or otherwise retired from their anti-submarine work.

In the process, the Navy has squandered almost $1 billion in public funds. The admirals have hidden the magnitude of this loss from Congress and the nation. Even more outrageous, the Navy is still building the faulty gear into its newest, proudest destroyers.

The drone choppers themselves were phased out in 1966. They were supposed to clatter up from the ship platforms, zero in on subs and dispatch them with torpedo bombs. Instead, the drones plummeted into the sea like rotten apples in a windstorm, or disappeared into the blue, never to be seen again.

The unmanned craft, called DASH for Drone Anti-Submarine Helicopter, even had bad luck on the ground. Three were burned up in truck accidents. For reasons only the Navy knows, one of these Edsels of the air was consigned to the Smithsonian museum.

We learned of the billion-dollar boondoggle from a classified Navy report prepared by trouble shooter Rear Adm. John Bulkeley. The Navy had good reason to hastily classify this 168-page document.

In it, Bulkeley sizzled on discovering an "uncertified helo platform" on the USS Knox, one of a spanking new group of destroyers. He also turned up a "useless...hangar and JP-5 fueling system."

"DASH...platform can only be used as a Vert Rep pick up," he growled, meaning that choppers can hover to pick up or drop supplies, but cannot safely land on the platforms. The admiral wrote that the Navy, not the contractors, was to blame. "Government Responsible" was his terse judgment on the goaf.

We checked other Navy ships to find out whether the long-defunct DASH system had been built into them. We found more than 150 ships with bum platforms, faulty hangars, and useless control rooms.

The ships equipped to handle worthless drones, according to another internal Navy document, reads like a "Who's Who in the U.S. Fleet."

Among these are the destroyer USS J. P. Kennedy, the vaunted nuclear destroyer USS Truxton and even destroyer tenders like the USS Dixie. Some had been modernized with DASH platforms at huge expense long after the program was officially declared a flop.

Shamefaced Navy experts explained privately to my associate, Les Whitten, that barnacle-encrusted admirals had insisted on building the ships' platforms without ever being sure that the drones would work. When the unmanned choppers flopped into the sea, the admirals kept building more platforms in the hope that a new helicopter could be developed to use them. But the new helicopter program also fizzled.

Now, the Navy is praying that still another light-weight helicopter, or a heavier chopper will work. In either case, the old DASH facilities would have to be modified at extra cost to the taxpayer.

Officially, the Navy told us that the cost of the debacle was way below $1 billion. But it acknowledged that 386 of the drones had been lost, mostly through crashes. The rest have been mothballed at even more expense to the U.S. Treasury, or pressed into makeshift limited duties.

Merry-Go-Round

Navy Blows Billion On 'Edsel' of Sea

"Maybe," said one Navy wag gloomily, "we can put wheels on them and use them for go-carts."

Inside Dope — Sen. Harold Hughes, D-Iowa, got headlines when his narcotics subcommittee said drugs don't have a significant effect on military missions in Vietnam. Now, Jon Steinberg, who spent weeks in Vietnam for another Senate subcommittee, had disputed the Hughes findings in a letter to Rep. John Murphy, D-N.Y. Steinberg wrote that the Hughes staffers were only in Vietnam a week, were "riddled" by interparty dissension and failed to discover that "drug use by troops in the field is a definite cause of battlefield deaths." One forward aid station doctor told Steinberg of removing marijuana from dead and injured combat troops. The "grass" filled several sandbags a week. Hughes staffers denied the charges.

Mafia in Market — The first big Senate hearings on Mafia influences in the stock market will begin shortly. They will be held before Sen. John McClellan's Permanent Investigating Subcommittee. This is the same committee that proved the Mafia existed with its Valachi hearings eight years ago.

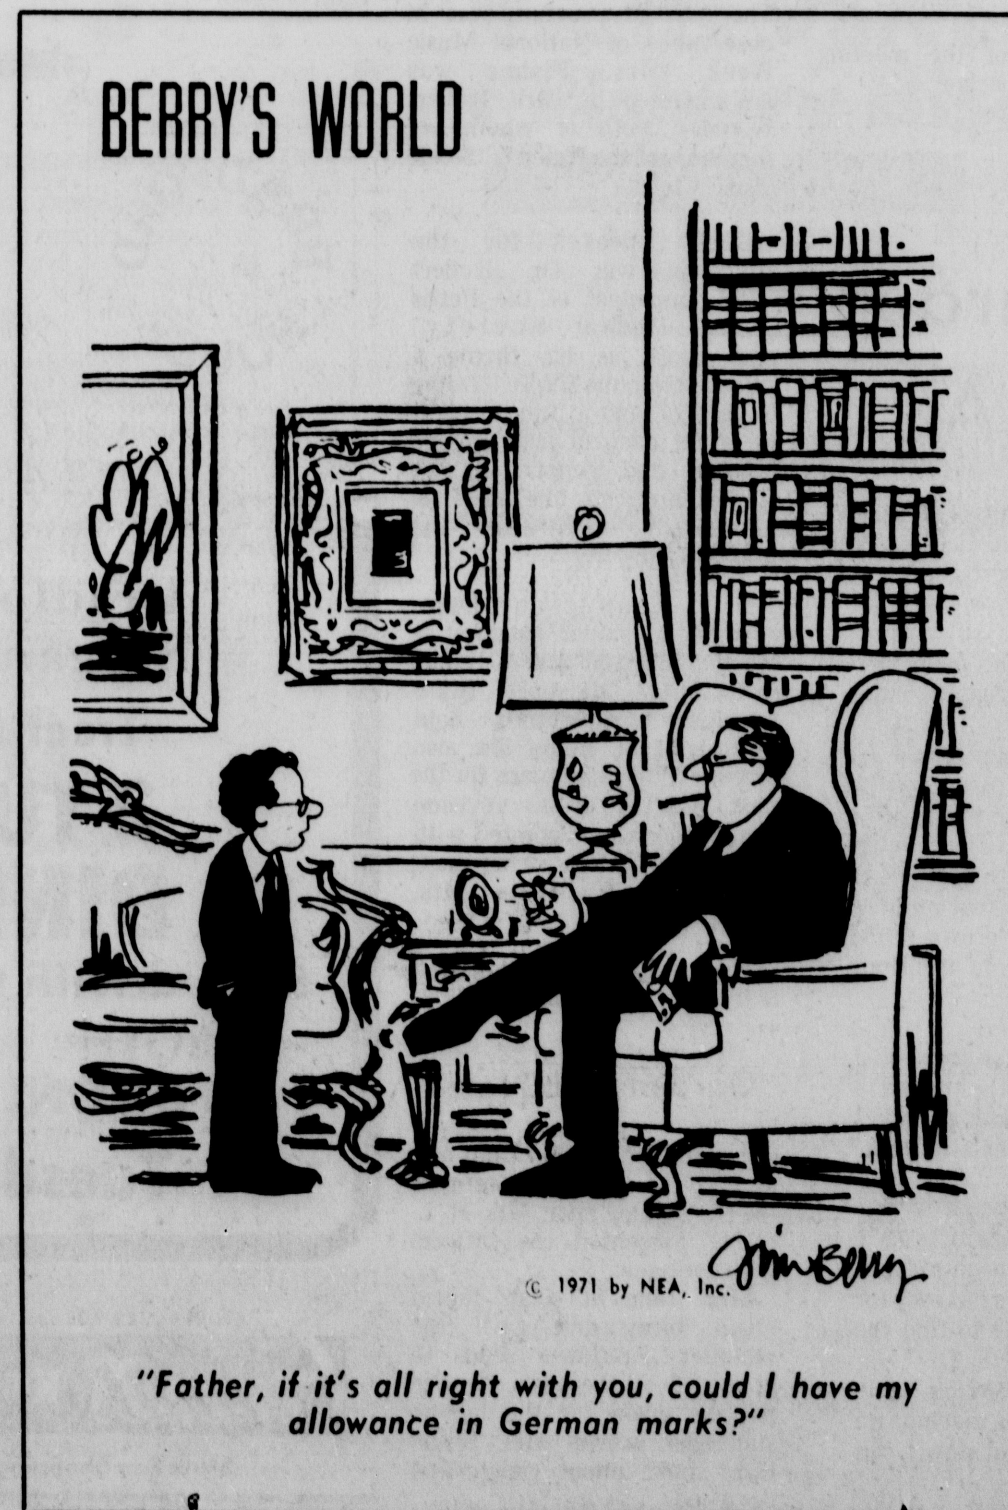

McClellan has found that the Mafia has been instrumental in siphoning off from Wall Street more than $100 million a year in stolen securities. His disclosures of names and firms will stun investors by showing how deeply organized crime has penetrated the brokerage business.

Bombings Continue — The new Federal Explosives Control Law, which restricts sales of explosives, hasn't stopped terrorists from rigging bombs. All the ingredients they need are still available. Toothbrush handles, for instance, contain useful microcellulose, and common gasoline and ammonium nitrate fertilizer can cause explosions. The terrorists usually hide their bombs in storage areas and restrooms. Two-way radios, used by bomb squads to search for bombs, have actually caused them to explode on occasion. The radio beam has caused premature detonation.

Scottish law permits a verdict of "not proven." In effect it says that the jury suspects the defendant is guilty as charged but the evidence set forth does not justify a verdict for conviction. From this comes the term, "Scotch verdict."

Expediency Is the Name Of the Game

By CARL T. ROWAN

WASHINGTON — The Rev. Theodore M. Hesburgh and the U.S. Commission on Civil Rights built quite a fire under "the derrières of government leaders seven months ago, accusing the administration of failing to respond to a civil rights mandate.

The commission has served notice in a new report that it will keep roasting the President and his top advisers until they make an effective commitment to erase discrimination in housing, employment, and other fields.

Rowan

The commission may run out of fuel before that happens.

Anyone who say a recent "Meet the Press" performance of George Romney, secretary of housing and urban development, will understand why the commission criticized HUD so harshly.

He will also understand why the housing problems of minorities will scarcely be solved while Romney is at HUD, tailoring and retailing his policies to whatever the President and his advisers think is politically expedient.

The new report reveals that last August HUD informed the commission that its goal was "the creation of open communities which will provide an opportunity for individuals to live within a reasonable distance of their jobs and daily activities by increasing housing options for low-income and minority families.

"By April 1971, however, the department had retreated from this stance and now states that it is opposed to use of federal leverage to promote economic integration," the report continues.

Yet, there was Romney on network television pretending that HUD's policies have not changed. Where candor is so completely lacking, who can believe what about HUD policies?

Romney spent a good part of the TV program setting up and knocking down a straw man called "forced integration."

He finally defined "forced integration" to mean "that we were going to force low and moderate income housing into every suburban community in the country, and another interpretation is that we were going to withhold any federal funds if any discrimination took place with respect to any program in a community.

"Now, I am opposed to that. I think it would be wrong. I don't think the statues call for it, and that is what is meant by forced integration."

When Romney finished pounding that straw man it was clear that under his direction HUD is not going to do anything to antagonize suburban residents. He said he will "give preference" to communities that volunteer to accept low and moderate income housing.

While HUD got the biggest blast from the commission, chaired by Hesburgh, who also is president of Notre Dame University, the report carried sharp indictments of many other departments and agencies. It said that since the criticism of seven months ago they have taken only "tentative first steps toward more stringent civil rights enforcement combined with promises to do better in the future.

"The commission is not satisfied. Neither should the American people be."

The problem seems to be that the administration thinks the American people ARE satisfied. Mr. Nixon and his top advisers seem to have concluded that the people who put him in the Presidency don't want more stringent civil rights enforcement, don't want any housing integration (economic or racial), don't want more of the good-paying, policy-making jobs in the hands of minorities.

With minorities giving Mr. Nixon a mere pittance of votes in 1968 and no likelihood of much change in 1972, there just isn't any political incentive for this administration to do the things the civil rights commission is demanding.

Father Hesburgh seems to think morality, sense of justice, national interest should override the issue of personal political gain.

Which may explain why priests head colleges and commissions, but they never get to reside at 1600 Pennsylvania Avenue.

Oswald: "The Chinese team had finished second to Italy in 1959 and we were not surprised to find them opposing us in the 1970 finals. They play a system called 'The Precision Club.' It is a good system, but enormously complicated."

Jim: "It is far too complicated for ordinary players and may be too complicated even for the Chinese. Bobby Wolff and I reached six clubs on today's hand. The bidding in the box shows how the Chinese got to seven."

Oswald: "The first two bids look normal, but the opening bid was artificial and merely showed at least 16 high-card points. The one-diamond response was also artificial and was supposed to show 5 points or less. Two clubs showed the suit and four spades was the 'impossible negative' that said he really had a very good hand with a singleton spade. South's five-spade call was due to his having misconstrued their convention. He thought that North had a good hand with a very long spade suit. North jumped to seven clubs to make sure his partner wouldn't try anything like seven spades."

Jim: "Seven clubs was a laydown since there were 12 top tricks and both red queens are doubleton in front of the ace-king-jack. Tai of China drew trumps and cashed his ace-king of hearts to see if the queen would drop. It did and he claimed."

A's Take Opener, 4-2

Royals Catch Fire; Belt Athletics 10-4

KANSAS CITY (AP) — The Oakland Athletics were embarrassed but good Sunday, but the rest of the American League would do well not to laugh.

Dick Williams, the Oakland manager, was all smiles despite the 10-4 clobbering by the Kansas City Royals in the second game of a doubleheader.

Oakland won the opener 4-2.

Williams found out in the twin bill that the A's have what appears to be the best 1-2-3-4 pitching punch in the AL if not in the majors.

The four-man rotation, plus additional spot starts by Rollie Fingers, includes Jim "Catfish" Hunter, Vida Blue, John "Blue Moon" Odom and Chuck

Dobson—not necessarily in that order.

Odom made his first 1971 start in the nightcap after recovering from a winter elbow operation. Dobson started the first game in his fourth test after coming off the disabled list two weeks ago.

Williams praised both pitchers and labeled Odom's effort as "a magnificent performance."

All of the embarrassment came after Odom's departure for a pinch hitter after six innings with Oakland leading 3-2. Odom gave up three hits, including a second inning two-run homer to Paul Schaal, walked nobody and struck out three.

"We knew Odom wasn't going to go all the way before the game," Williams said. "We had him down for 75 pitches, and that's all. He threw 71 the first six innings so we pinch hit for him."

Odom, like Williams, was more than pleased.

"I feel great," Odom said. "I feel better now than I've felt in two years. I'm beginning a new life—pitching without that pain. I relied mostly on my fast ball. I threw two sliders, and one brought that home run. When I pitch three or four more times, my curve and slider will come around."

"I'm ready to go into the rotation. The way I feel now nothing can stop me."

Williams said Odom's next start will come Saturday at Oakland against the Minnesota Twins.

The start of the second game was almost a carbon copy of the first inning of the opener. Bert Campaneris and Joe Rudi led off with singles off of Mike McCormick, and the A's wound up with three runs.

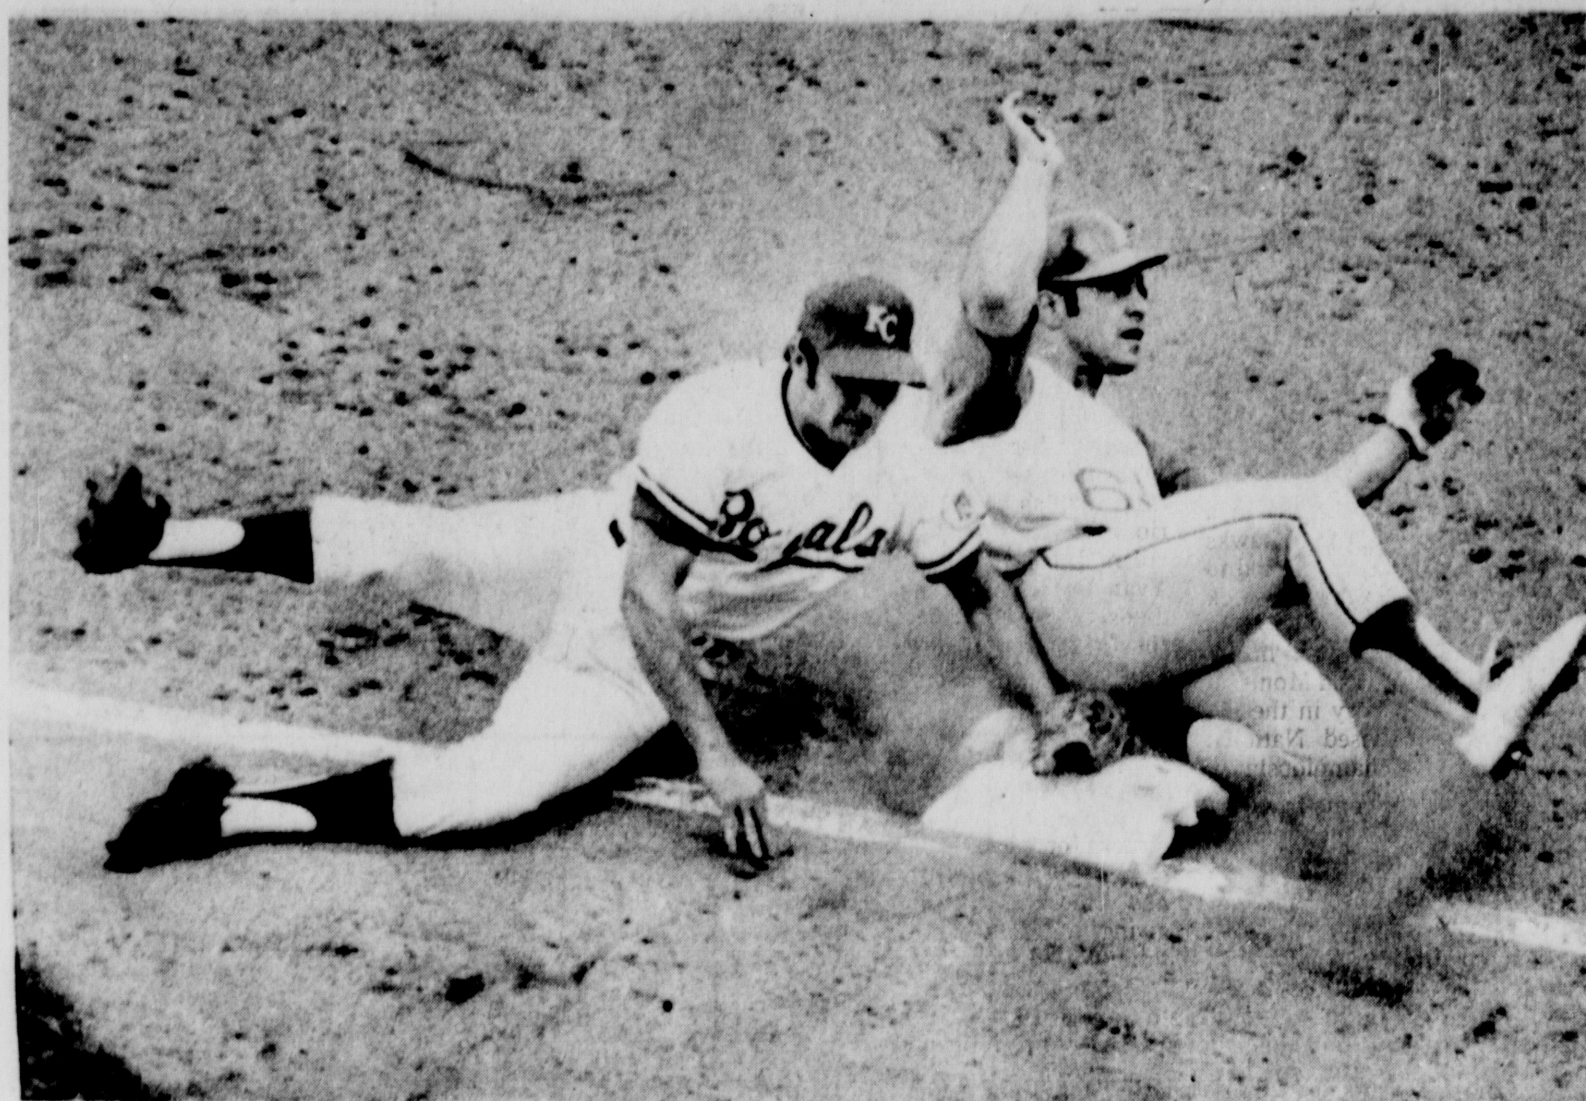

Schaal drilled his two-run homer in the second, and the game rolled along 3-2 until the seventh when the A's padded their lead with a run on a walk, a stolen base and Rudi's single.

The Royals jolted Odom's successors, Darold Knowles and Bob Locker, for four runs in the last of the seventh, the tying and go-ahead runs coming on pinch hitter Bobby Knoop's two-run single. They added four more in the eighth.

Singles by Campaneris and Reggie Jackson scored two unearned runs in the first game's seventh after Fred Patek opened the door by failing to touch second base on a double play ball that left both runners safe.

Before that, homers by Gail Hopkins and Amos Otis put the Royals in a 2-2 tie.

The A's won the five-game series 3-2 and left town with a fat five-game bulge over Minnesota in the AL West.

Bando Safely into Third

Oakland's Sal Bando (6) slides into third base safely as Kansas City third baseman Paul Schaal tries to make the tag. Bando was on first when Angel Mangual singled to center field. The play came in the fourth inning of the first game of the Royals-Athletics' doubleheader, Sunday in Kansas City. Oakland won the contest 4-2, but dropped the second game, 10-4.

In Sudden Death

Houston Tourney Nabbed By Green

HOUSTON (AP) — Rookie Hubert Green said he felt no particular pressure when he went to the first extra hole in a sudden-death playoff with veteran Don January for the $25,000 first prize in the Houston Champions Invitational Golf Tournament.

"Well, hell," shrugged the lachrymose, unflappable young man, "I'm walking down No. 1 fairway and I sure can't finish worse than second. Everyone else has finished."

He nailed down the top prize on that first extra hole Sunday, lashing a nine iron shot 13 feet from the flag and running in the putt from his unorthodox stance deeply crouched, feet widely spread, and elbows out.

The birdie won it over the 41-year-old January, a 16-year tour veteran and former PGA champion. January missed the green and chipped to about three feet before the 24-year-old rookie settled it. Green, who failed to make it when he first tried the PGA players school, joined the tour only late last year. The victory pushed his earnings for the year to $59,300, $44,100 in the last four weeks.

Green, a native of Birmingham, Ala., and a Florida State graduate, and January finished the regulation 72 holes with scores of 280, just four under par on the rugged, 7,166-yard, par-71 Champions Golf Club course.

Green had a steady par 71 on the final round while January closed quickly with a 68.

At one time or another during the hot, sultry day, seven players either led or were within one shot. One by one they faded back as the lean, dark-haired Green held on.

Lee Trevino had a 67 for 283, one stroke back and tied at that figure with Bob Murphy, who had a 71. Dan Sikes, 66, and Lou Graham, 72, followed at 282. Masters champion Charles Coody, who shared the lead at one time, ran into trouble coming in and finished with a 75 for 284. DeWitt Weaver, the third round leader, also took a 75 for 283. Arnold Palmer was never in contention and finished with a 75 for 294.

Lining Up a Win

PGA rookie Hubert Green takes care in aiming for his final putt on the 18th green during the last round of the Houston Champions International Tournament. Green parred the 18th hole and went on to win the tourney on the first hole of sudden death playoff over Don January. (UPI)

Canonero II Seeks First Triple Crown in 23 Years

BALTIMORE (AP) — Canonero II, virtually unwanted as a yearling and unknown as the Kentucky Derby winner, now has the opposition unghing as he shoots for the first Triple Crown in 23 years.

"I don't intend to hook Canonero again if I can help it," Reggie Cornell, the trainer of Eastern Fleet, said after the Cinderella horse of 1971 scored a spectacular triumph Saturday in the Preakness.

It was Eastern Fleet who stayed with Canonero II throughout the 1 3-16 mile classic. But at the end, Venezuelan jockey Gustavo Avila and his mount were pulling away.

The victory margin was 1½ lengths and the time of 1:54 broke the Pimlico track record, set in the 1955 Preakness by Nashua, by three-fifths of a second.

The Belmont Stakes in New York, last of the Triple Crown series on June 5, is at 1½ miles. Arias said the distance would not bother Canonero II, and the owners and trainers of other horses seem to agree.

So far, only Jim French, the third-place finisher from the 11-horse Preakness field, seemed likely to compete in the Belmont. Five of the field were in the Derby, too, with Jim French the runner-up that time.

Sound Off was fourth in the Preakness, followed by Bold Reason, Executioner, Royal J.D., Vegas Vic, Impetuosity, Spouting Horna and Limit to Reason.

Despite the recent startling successes, however, the Belmont doesn't figure to be a walkover. Among the Belmont possibilities who missed the first two Triple Crown races are Good Behaving, Run the Fanlet and On Your Toes.

Citation, in 1948, was the last Triple Crown winner. And, since 1958, the Belmont has been the stumbling block for Tim Tam, Carry Back, Northern Dancer, Kauai King and Majestic Prince.

Canonero II, whose $137,400 winner's share upped his lifetime earnings to $315,089, was sold for a mere $1,200 as a Kentucky-bred yearling at Keeneland.

The sire, Pretendre, finished second in England's 1966 Epsom Derby but was not well known in the United States. In addition, Canonero II had a slight leg deformity that turned away potential buyers.

Breeder Edward B. Benjamin said in Greensboro, N.C., Sunday that the colt "would not have stood training here, or in England or Europe."

O'Connors Is Dropped From Tournament

KINGSVILLE — The O'Connor Chevy softball team was eliminated from the Kingsville Softball Tournament Sunday.

After bombing B-L Electric of Clinton, 11-3, Saturday, O'Connors found themselves on the short end of a 4-2 score at the hands of that same squad Sunday.

The loss was the second in the double-elimination tourney for O'Connors. Earlier Sunday they dropped a 4-3 score to Whiteman Air Force Base.

Ed Driess was credited with the 11-3 win over B-L Saturday. John Fiene was the loser of the 4-3 game to Whiteman, while Joe Auge was tagged with the 4-2 setback against B-L.

O'Connors will move back into Central Missouri Softball Association play Wednesday at Housel Park. They will take on Ditzfeld Transfer at 7:30 p.m. in a doubleheader that night.

Donnie Allison Outruns Brother to Finish Line

TALLADEGA, Ala. (AP) — It was the richest "one lap" race in the history of stock car racing, and that final trip on the Alabama International Speedway Sunday paid Donnie Allison $30,600.

"I just happened to be in the right place at the right time," said the 31-year-old from near-by Hueytown, youngest of two racing brothers, after the Winston 500-mile battle that actually was decided in the final 2½ miles.

Allison beat his 33-year-old brother Bobby across the finish line by a car length in one of the most thrilling races ever run anywhere. Bobby, in turn, beat strongman Buddy Baker to the line by about three feet to capture second place.

A blanket could have covered the three cars anywhere on the steeply-banked course during that final lap.

The stretch duel was set up when Dave Marcis, subbing for ailing Bobby Isaac, broke the engine in his Dodge while leading the two Allison brothers and Baker into the first turn to begin the 182nd of 188 laps around the 2.66-mile speedway.

Marcis' car caught fire momentarily and crashed into the outer rail of the turn, bringing out the seventh yellow light of the day. The green racing flag — meaning full speed ahead — came out five laps later, with only the 188th and final circuit left.

But while the leaders were running full bore, the speed ranged well above the 185 m.p.h. mark, aided by drafting techniques that allow one car to run in the trailing vacuum of another car.

Only four drivers handled the race prior to the dramatic finish and the two Allison brothers and Baker shared the honors. Bobby Allison, who replaced three-time Grand National champion David Pearson in the Holman and Moody Mercury only a week ago, led the most laps, 70. Donnie was in front 64 circuits, Marcis for 38 and Baker for 16.

Bobby Allison picked up $19,850 for second place, while Baker was paid $9,925 for third. Fourth place went to Pete Hamilton, winner of both 500 mile races here last year and fifth to Fred Lorenzen. Hamilton and Lorenzen drove Plymouths.

Colonels, Stars Finale

LOUISVILLE, Ky (AP) — The Utah Stars and Kentucky Colonels head back to Utah Tuesday for the championship game of the American Basketball Association title series.

Kentucky's 105-102 victory in the nationally televised sixth game Saturday in Louisville left the series knotted at 3-3, with a sellout crowd of 13,000-plus assured for the finale in Salt Lake City's Salt Palace.

If past records hold, Utah will take the title. Utah has won all six meetings between the two teams in Salt Lake City this season, including three in the playoffs.

The Salt Lake City altitude, over 4,000 feet, has bothered Kentucky players, who said they had trouble breathing in the thin air.

"You really drag after awhile," says Colonel guard Louie Dampier. "Sometimes it's really tough to catch your breath."

Colonels president Mike Storen said club officials didn't consider the altitude enough of a problem to provide sideline oxygen for the Colonels, however.

This is only the second time in the ABA's five-year history the championship series has gone the full seven games, the first having been Pittsburgh's seven-game win over New Orleans in 1968.

Hota Wins Title

LOS ANGELES (AP) — New York's Hota took the U.S. National Amateur Soccer Championships Sunday with a 6-4 victory over the San Pedro Yugoslav Americans.

Carl Minor scored two goals for Hota, including the one that brought the New York team from behind to tie it at 3-3 with 58 seconds remaining in regulation play.

Montreal Ties NHL Playoffs

MONTREAL (AP) — "Those Mahovich boys," Chicago Coach Billy Reay sighed, shaking his head in disbelief.

For the second Sunday in a row, that's all Black Hawks goalie Tony Esposito seemed to see. And, as they had a week earlier, it was those Mahovich boys—Frank and his kid brother, Pete—who carried Montreal to a thrilling victory in the nationally televised National Hockey League championships.

The Canadiens come-from-behind 4-3 triumph sent the Stanley Cup series back to Chicago for the seventh and deciding game Tuesday night.

Frank scored a playoff-record 14th goal and missed a chance to up that count on a first-period penalty shot. His 27 playoff points also tied the single-season mark.

Pete scored twice, including the winner with Montreal playing a man short in the third period.

Jim Pappin of Chicago and Yvan Cournoyer of the Canadiens traded goals midway in the first period, then Pete put Montreal in front in the second period, cruising behind the Black Hawks' net and slipping the puck past a surprised Esposito.

But Chico Maki and Pappin struck for the Hawks in the closing minutes of the period and Chicago held a 3-2 lead, giving the Canadiens only 20 minutes to avert something that had never happened to them before—elimination from the Stanley Cup at home.

They made sure it didn't happen this time either. Barely five minutes into the third period his brother Frank grabbed the loose puck, raced in on Esposito and fired.

The Chicago netminder stopped the shot but Mahovich grabbed the rebound and stuffed it into the net.

And less than four minutes later he set up his kid brother with the winner, skating in on the Chicago goal, drawing the Black Hawks defenders to him, then slipping the puck to Pete, who rifled it home.

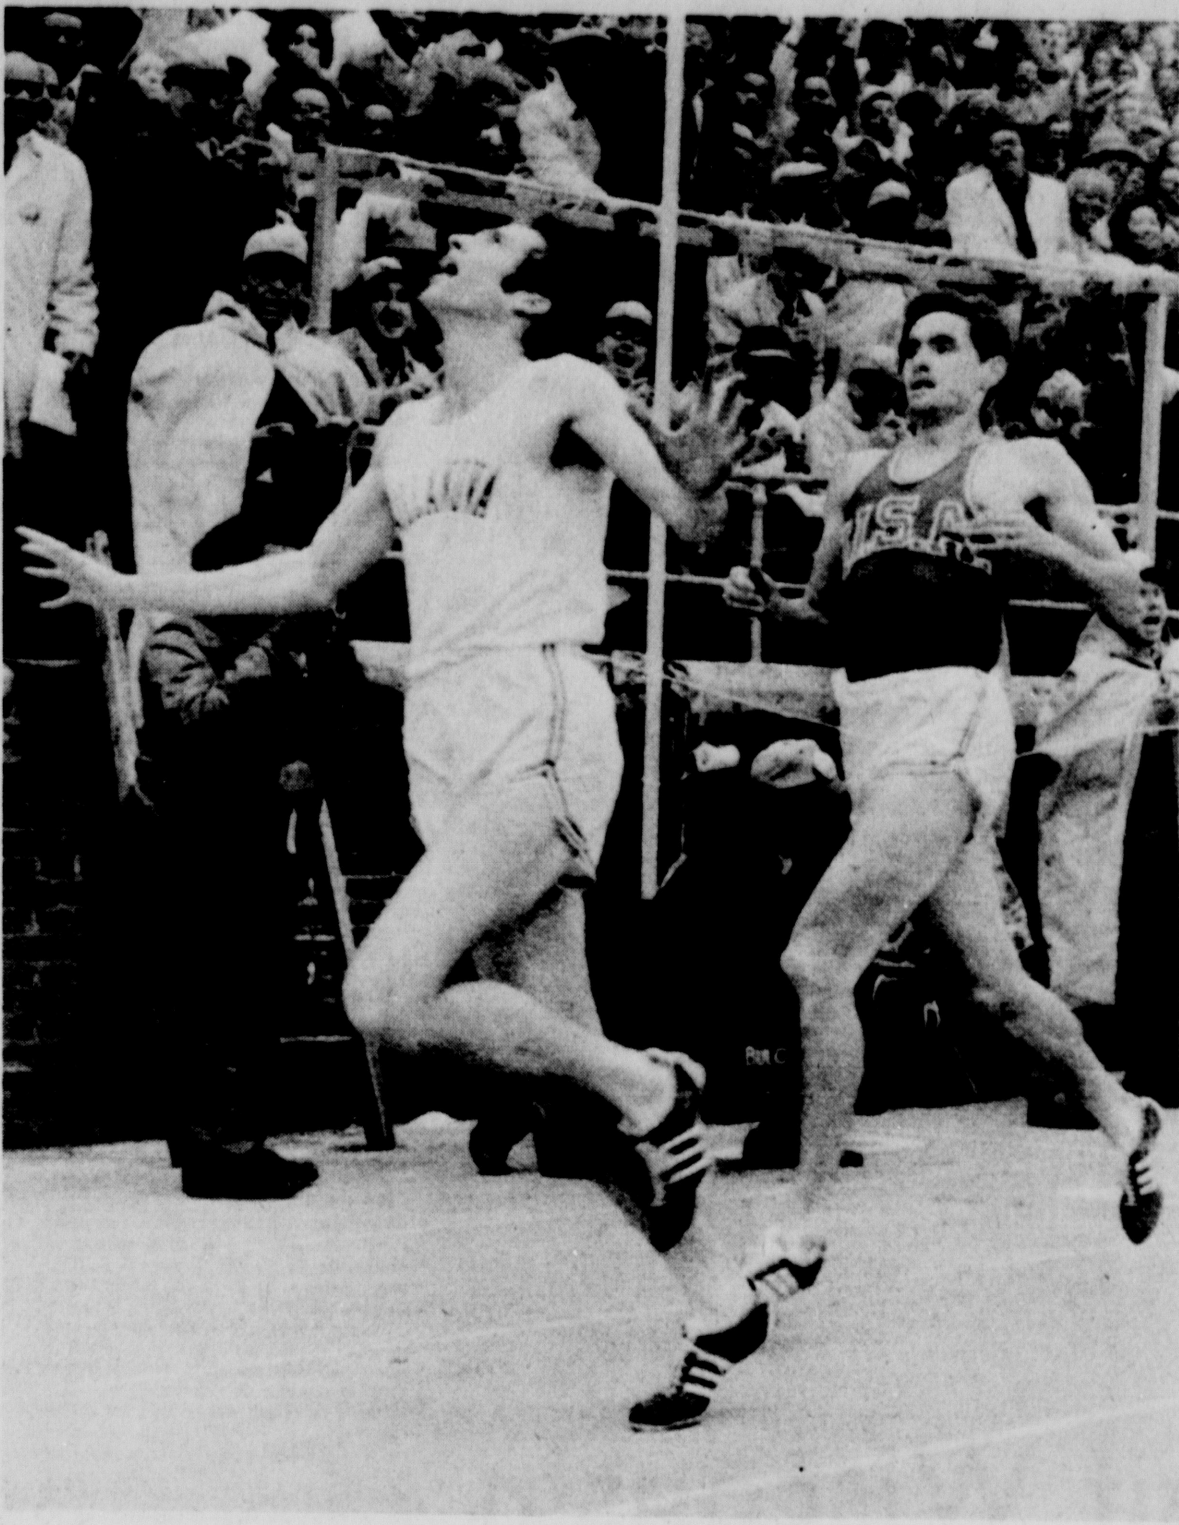

It was the penalty shot which had the Montreal Forum in an uproar—until Esposito blocked it. The shot—the first in NHL playoff history—pits a lone attacker against only the goalie with just one attempt at a goal.

It was called by referee Art Skov when Frank Mahovich broke in on Esposito and the netminder threw his stick to deflect the puck.

Then, with the rest of the players out of the way and the puck sitting alone at center ice, Mahovich skated in circles as the crowd held its breath.

"I took my time before attacking," said Frank. "I was trying to figure out what I would do. But Tony surprised me. I didn't figure he would come out so soon. He came out quickly then started back. As soon as he started back I shot. Maybe I should have waited longer."

Esposito said playing a penalty shot is "just like any breakaway. You wait for the shooter to make his move and then react."

Liquori Wins at Wire

17-Hit Attack Houston Outslugs Cardinals

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — The Houston Astros, who have been suffering a famine of runs lately, turned gluttons Sunday, swamping the St. Louis Cardinals 12-4.

Astro third baseman Doug Rader led the hitting parade, slamming a first inning homer with the bases loaded to shoot the Astros into a quick 4-0 lead.

Afterward, Rader, who had been having his hitting problems, credited the turnaround to Astro Manager Harry Walker.

"I might not be out of my slump yet except for Harry," Rader said. "He took me up to his room in New York during the last Astro road trip and he talked to me an hour about my problems."

That night in New York, Rader shattered an 0-for-28 slump and the next... day he helped beat the Mets' Tom Seaver with a three-run homer.

In the past two games, Rader has banged out four hits. Sunday he knocked in six runs, adding a two run double in the third to his grand slam effort.

"If players hit, they get all the credit. If they don't hit, the manager gets the blame," Rader said. "I don't think it's right. How can you blame someone else for the fact that I'm not hitting? If anyone is to blame, it is me."

The Astro explosion of runs gave Larry Dierker his sixth victory of the year against one loss. Jerry Reuss, now 4-3, started the game for the Cards but was pulled in the second and he took the loss.

The Astros, who have been unable to put their hits together most of the young season, were happy about their 17-hit effort Sunday.

"I hope we are starting to get our hitting together," said outfielder Jimmy Wynn, who contributed one RBI. "Maybe this is a start for us."

Hibbard Wins At Capital

HOLTS SUMMIT, Mo. — Roy Hibbard of Marshall won his first feature win of the season Saturday night at Capital Speedway here.

Hibbard, who took the lead from brother Russell on the fifth lap, led the super-sprint field across the finish to pocket the lion's share of the purse. A crowd of over 1,700 persons watched the Hibbard Brothers battle in the 20-lap event.

Russell ran second in the feature, while Flea Atkins, Jim Jenkins and Roy Cary rounded out the first five positions.

Bill Utz, Sedalia, won one of the three super-sprint heats, but was forced to the pits after leading the feature for the first three laps with a cut tire.

Roy Comstock beat Torch Alshire across the finish line for the B-modified win; Lawson Leonard notched the late model feature, while Dave Sapp was the winner of the hobby stock feature.

In the B-feature, George Lasoski of Dover, Mo., seeking his fourth straight feature win, hit the wall on the ninth lap while leading the race.

Other winners included Alshire and Bob Thoman in the B-modified heats; Cary and Flea Atkins won two of three super-sprint heats, while Terry Turpin and Leonard Dale nabbed the heats in the stocks.

Big 8 Crown on Line

KANSAS CITY (AP) — The Big Eight Conference baseball championship will be decided, this week, probably today and Tuesday when the two leaders, Oklahoma and Iowa State, collide in a three-game series at Ames, Iowa.

The two clubs had a doubleheader scheduled today and play a single tilt Tuesday. Oklahoma and Iowa State went into the twin bill tied for the lead, each with 10-5 league records.

Fourth-place Missouri, 10-8, kept its slim chances alive Saturday by outscoring Nebraska at Lincoln, 11-7. With the defeat, the Cornhuskers were all but eliminated. Nebraska is 7-11.

Chip Land's grand slam home run with two out in the ninth inning gave Missouri its triumph to climax a six-run upsurge started when Jack Bastable led off the inning with a home run.

Colorado, in third place, has finished its season with a 13-8 mark. So have Kansas State, 11-10; Oklahoma State, 8-13, and Kansas, 6-15.

Liquori Streaks Past Jim Ryun

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Marty Liquori beat Jim Ryun in their super mile Sunday by challenging the world record holder in his specialty—an unbeatable finishing kick.

The one thing Liquori feared in preparing for the race was that Ryun would outkick him in the stretch in the feature event of the Martin Luther King Games. He thought Ryun was stronger and that if the race was close, nobody could beat the former Kansas star in the final 200 yards.

Well, Ryun was close in the stretch. He was a step behind Liquori with 200 yards to go. Surprise! Liquori never let him gain an inch and won by a step in 3:54.6, the fastest mile ever recorded in the eastern United States.

"We were both dead tired at the end," Liquori said after his greatest victory. "But I was lucky to hang on. I expected to have him flying by," he observed. It seemed as if Liquori was still surprised that he had outdueled the fastest miler in the world.

Ryun didn't think Liquori was lucky.

"Marty ran a brilliant race and I just followed him. I didn't underestimate his strength," Ryun said. "He knew I always was strong in the last 200 yards and with 100 yards left I saw him a bit heavy. Then I got a bit heavy myself and he held up."

Ryun too was clocked in 3:54.6, finishing well ahead of Byron Dyce, who came in third in 3:59.6. Reggie McAfee of Brevard N.C. Junior College was fourth (4:00.0) and Keith Colburn of Sports International fifth (4:01.1).

Liquori ran fifth and Ryun seventh through most of the first two laps. The half was completed in 2:03.2, the pace, however, was too slow and Liquori knew it. So, he decided to go out and make the race himself. He took over the lead just as the field started the third lap. Ryun sensed that Liquori was going to try and run him into the ground and took up the challenge.

The world's two greatest milers ran the final half with never more than a stride separating them. The crowd of some 23,000 at Franklin Field was on its feet as they rounded the final turn of the gun lap and into the stretch. Here was what Liquori feared. He had to outrun the guy who also held the world half-mile record.

Ryun reached back for his famous finishing kick which had made him the No. 1 miler in 3:51.1, world record holder, before his shocking retirement in June, 1969. He couldn't gain an inch. At the end, Liquori still had that precious step and one of his most cherished victories.

Liquori ran the first quarter in 61 seconds, completed the second leg in 62.2 and the third in 56.7. He finished in 54.6 under tremendous pressure from Ryun, whose splits were 61.4, 61.9, 57.0, and 54.3.

"I was psyched up, thinking about this race a little bit every day," Liquori said after the race. "If I'm not this high I'd probably lose."

The 21-year-old Liquori said the race didn't go at all as he expected. "When I heard that three-minute third quarter (3:00.0) I thought I was dead. It was much too slow for me to win the race. I was trying my hardest. I think I started my kick too late, 150-yards from the finish and I was lucky to hang on."

The Villanova finance student appeared much the stronger after it was over. Ryun walked three quarters of the length around the infield, then retraced his steps to the pole vaulting pit where he sat quietly for more than 10 minutes without saying a word. He said he wasn't disappointed and that Political Preview?

Hopefuls Visit Wisconsin

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Auditioning in a state that could become a crucial political theater next year, four senators have given Wisconsin party leaders a preview performance as prospective contenders for the Democratic presidential nomination.

Wisconsin's share of the casting for that role comes in an April 4 presidential primary. Although the state's top Democrat, Gov. Patrick J. Lucey, said it is simply too early to forecast who will emerge as the front runner, that billing now belongs to Sen. Edmund S. Muskie of Maine.

But Sen. George McGovern of South Dakota already has a campaign organization at work in Wisconsin, Sen. Birch Bayh of Indiana is making his contacts and party contributors who heard from the potential candidates seemed interested in seeing more of Sen. Harold E. Hughes of Iowa.

And there will almost certainly be other names on the Wisconsin ballot.

The four senators were the featured attraction at a $100 a plate steak and strawberry shortcake dinner Saturday night. No one emerged as a star. They shared about equally in the applause of an audience Lucey said included party workers crucial to any candidate.

The speeches were standard Democratic fare. Indeed, it seemed at times, the performers could have traded texts without difficulty.

"The men in the Democratic party's repertoire of potential national leaders differ in style and approach and to some degree on the issues," said Hughes. "But on the big moral stands they are united."

Muskie's speech too, was a standard piece, perhaps most notable for his statements that Democrats must strive to forfeit the war issue by ending the conflict before the 1972 campaign even if that means losing the election.

Bayh came on like an evangelist, gesturing, pointing, dramatically repeating his phrases and at one point smacking the microphone accidentally. "We can ignite a spark of hope in the heart of even the most insignificant soul in the darkest corner of our society," he said at the end. "This I believe and so must we all."

Finally, McGovern stressed the war issue, and his proposed legislation to force U.S. withdrawal by the end of the year. The withdrawal theme was popular. Each man mentioned it and each was applauded for it.

Present but silent was Sen. William Proxmire of Wisconsin who is doing some presidential exploration and could wind up a primary contestant.

Lucey said Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey of Minnesota and Sen. Henry M. Jackson of Washington almost certainly will be on the ballot too unless they sign disclaimers of candidacy. Without such a disavowal, anyone designated a presidential prospect by a state commission automatically goes on the ballot.

Sees Big Profit In Selling Worms

BUNKER HILL, W.Va. (AP) — "It just shows you the lengths some people will go to escape work," says Bill Parker, whose first "crop" of fishing worms now numbers more than 600,000.

Parker, 50, a retired diesel engineer, said he pays about $15 for 1,000 breeding worms.

"One thousand worms will give you 13,000 worms under ideal conditions within four months," added Mrs. Parker.

Parker said he plans to sell them as bait directly to fishermen for about 35 cents a dozen and also to other bait dealers for $15 to $18 a thousand.

Flexing Political Muscles

By ELIAS ANTAR
Associated Press Writer

CAIRO (AP) — Few people thought Anwar Sadat had it in him to be a strong leader when he succeeded Gamal Abdel Nasser as Egypt's president seven months ago. His smooth and apparently effortless purge of leftist political foes has changed his image.

"He really showed he had guts by taking them on," said a cafe waiter. "Good for him."

"Good man, good man," commented a newspaper vendor in Cairo's fashionable Soliman Pasha street. "May Allah preserve him."

"Now we can breathe again," said an engineer, referring to Sadat's pledge to end wire tapping and other kinds of special police surveillance.

The government reported that thousands of Egyptians messaged Sadat their complete backing. Workers and students marched through Cairo's streets Saturday in organized demonstrations of support.

Sadat confronted a group of six ministers and three political bosses Thursday and arrested them because, he said, they tried to overthrow him.

Part of the approval generally expressed for the president's action arose from the fact that the ousted men, and particularly Interior Minister Sharawi Gomaa, were widely disliked.

Sadat followed his initial move with a thorough cleanup of top administration posts, replacing holdovers from Nasser's days with his own men.

Scores, perhaps hundreds of government posts, seem due to change hands. For example, Sadat fired six senior officials of the government radio and television stations Sunday.

The president installed a new commander in chief of the armed forces, a new interior minister, a new chief of intelligence, a new district attorney and a new speaker of the national assembly.

A new 33-man cabinet, sworn in Friday, retained Premier Mahmoud Fawzi and Foreign Minister Mahmoud Riad. They have been prominent in assisting Sadat's efforts to reach a political settlement with Israel.

Sadat also said that Egypt's only political party, the Arab Socialist Union, will be reorganized to make it more representative.

Seale Trial Drags On

NEW HAVEN, Conn. (AP) — Two years ago today, a 24-year-old Black Panther named Alex Rackley accepted an invitation to accompany a group of party members on a trip from New York to New Haven. Four days later, he was driven to a riverbed 20 miles north of here and shot to death.

In the months that followed 14 persons were arrested, including the cofounder and national chairman of the Black Panther party, Bobby G. Seale.

On Tuesday, Seale's six-month-old murder-kidnap trial with Ericka Huggins, a local party leader, enters its final stages as the jury of five blacks and seven whites hear summations by prosecution and defense attorneys.

Judge Harold M. Mulvey has told the jury he hopes to read his charge to them on Wednesday.

Seale, 34, and Mrs. Huggins, 23, face capital charges of kidnapping resulting in death and aiding and abetting murder, plus the less serious charges of conspiracy to kidnap and to murder.

The state's case against Seale rests primarily on the uncorroborated testimony of George Sams Jr., a former Panther who has pleaded guilty to second-degree murder in Rackley's death and admitted giving orders at the scene of the shooting.

Sams was the only witness to testify that Seale ordered Rackley executed after concluding he was a police informer. The Panther leader—in New Haven to speak at Yale University—left two days before the killing.

Mrs. Huggins' involvement, according to Sams and other prosecution witnesses, includes active participation in events preceding Rackley's slaying—his torture with hot water and tape-recorded interrogation.

Sams was allowed to take the stand in Superior Court only after two court-ordered psychiatric reports found him competent to testify. The defense has made his motives as a witness against Seale a central issue of the trial.

Over vigorous objections by State's Atty. Arnold Markle, a Black Panther testifying for the defense described Sams as a "very vicious and cruel" individual who "constantly lied" and once vowed revenge against Seale after the Panther chairman expelled him from the party for stabbing another member in the leg.

Mrs. Huggins testified that many of her actions were compelled by fears of Sams derived from what she had seen him do to Rackley. Seale did not take the stand.

Of the 14 persons originally indicted in the Rackley case, charges against one were dropped, one was convicted, two were death without publicity by juvenile authorities, six pleaded guilty to reduced charges. Seale and Mrs. Huggins are on trial and two others await trial.

The trial is in recess today.

...pays as much as $5,000.00 at the rate of $100.00 a week for a full-time registered nurse when you come home from hospital.

YES, 25¢ COVERS YOUR ENTIRE FAMILY FOR THE FIRST MONTH. THEN CONTINUE AT NATIONAL HOME'S REGULAR LOW RATE.

o many people discover—after it's too late—that their health insurance doesn't pay all the bills. It does not pay for services of doctors, nurses, specialists, surgeons... does not generally pay for surgery performed in a doctor's office... does not pay for nursing care at home. They learn to their regret that these expenses must be paid out of their own pocket!

But now, National Home brings you a Medical-Surgical-Nurse Family Health Plan that fills the "money gaps" in your health protection. It provides ALL these cash benefits:

Pays you for operations and surgery in the hospital... Pays tax-free cash for appendectomy, gall bladder removal, mastoidectomy, hernia, hysterectomy and all other operations listed in your policy. Cash benefits up to $600.00 paid directly to you for the surgical expense actually incurred.

Pays you for minor surgery in the doctor's office, or even at home... Yes, this National Home plan pays you cash benefits for minor surgery like a wart removal; a hemorrhoid excision; or a cyst removal. You get paid for the cost of every operation—from a minimum of $30.00 up to $600.00!

Pays you for doctor's bedside visits while hospitalized for a non-surgical confinement... This National Home plan pays you cash benefits for one visit per day by a physician (any physician who submits a bill, even your family doctor!) up to $500.00 for each hospitalization.

Pays you $100.00 a week for a Registered Nurse at Home... Even after you collect the large surgical or non-surgical hospital benefits, if your doctor has you employ a full-time registered nurse within 5 days after you come home, we'll pay you cash benefits at the rate of $100.00 a week for the same number of covered days you were hospitalized.

Pays cash direct to you... tax-free cash rushed by mail to you (not to doctor or hospital)—cash for Medical, Surgical, Nurse benefits that can total $5,600.00!

What if you already own some health insurance?

We pay you IN ADDITION TO whatever you collect from any other insurance with any other companies. Even if it's for the same illness! And even if it means you'll be collecting twice! In fact we say...

Never mind what Blue Cross Hospitalization Plans pay you. Never mind what benefits you receive from Blue Shield Medical Plans, Workmen's Compensation, Medicare or any other insurance you may have with any other company. We still pay you the cash benefits—right up to the maximum. Which means, that even if your other insurance has already paid some, or all, of your medical bills—you still collect from National Home! And every dollar is yours—to use any way you like.

Full benefits even if you're 65 or over.

You're not penalized because of advanced age. Yes, even if you are 65 or over, you receive the same cash benefits for operations... the same cash benefits for bedside doctor visits... the same cash benefits for minor surgery in the doctor's office... the same cash benefits for home nursing as folks younger than you. And remember, all these benefits are paid over and above your Medicare coverage.

Only 25¢ covers your ENTIRE FAMILY!

You really can put this wonderful protection in force for your whole family at a cost of—not $20.00... not $10.00... not even $5.00—but only the incredibly low price of 25¢ for the first month regardless of your age. And then:

Collect whenever any Covered Member of your family requires surgery or hospital medical care, and a full-time registered nurse after coming home from the hospital! Maybe hundreds, even thousands of dollars will be paid to you in medical, surgical and nursing benefits! Coverage is for your whole family. Imagine, whenever illness or injury strikes you or your loved ones—you can receive tax-free cash for each Covered Family Member.

Stop for a moment—and think.

Think how much a long illness or accident can cost you these days. How would you ever pay those big doctor bills, the cost of operations and home nursing care? What would you do if your pay check stopped, and there was no extra source of income to meet medical expenses that piled up on top of the same day-to-day living expenses that never stop? But now you can have the extra help you need—when you need it most—with this Medical-Surgical-Nurse Family Health Plan (NH05-369).

We can never cancel your policy.

You can count on this National Home protection no matter how old you become or how many times you collect from us! Your policy states that we can never cancel your protection after you have a lot of claims, or become old—or both—or for any other reason whatsoever! It is Guaranteed Renewable for Life! Only you can cancel.

No medical examination or embarrassing "investigations".

That's right! Forget about filling out one of those lengthy, complicated applications. Or answering a lot of personal questions. Or being "investigated" before your policy is issued, the way some companies require. The short Enrollment Form on this page tells us all we need to know. Notice it doesn't ask for a medical examination. Or set an age limit.

What DOESN'T your valuable National Home policy cover?

Get ready for a welcome surprise. It covers absolutely everything except conditions caused by: act of war; pregnancy; any mental or nervous disorders; dental repair or surgery except where repair is necessary due to injury to natural teeth; and any sickness or injury you had before the Effective Date of the policy (for the first two years only).

Why you must act before the deadline date.

Unless we receive your Enrollment Form the same time as everyone else's, we can't pass on the printing and processing savings that come from issuing many policies at one time. That's why we must impose a deadline date which cannot be extended even one day. If your form arrives too late, WE WILL NOT BE ALLOWED TO ACCEPT IT.

If you change your mind—we'll give you money back!

You are still free to return the policy within 15 days of the day you receive it, and your quarter will be refunded at once. There will be no obligation whatsoever—for you. The only obligation is ours.

Meanwhile, all during the 15 days you are deciding—you'll be protected by all the cash benefits of the policy. That's right, you will be fully covered all this time for any accident or illness which puts you in the hospital.

Nationally known and respected.

This is the kind of outstanding protection you may have seen in Reader's Digest, Parents', National Geographic and other leading publications. The special

Here are your low rates.

The following rate chart shows how little it costs after the first month to cover yourself, your spouse, and any adult dependent. Naturally, at these low rates we can issue you only one policy of this type. Each self-supporting adult, 16 or over, pays the rate shown for his or her age.

Age at Enrollment	Monthly Premium per Adult
16-39	only $2.30
40-49	only $2.85
50-59	only $3.35
60-69	only $4.15
70-79	only $4.95
80 and over	only $5.70

Only $2.75 more per month covers all your unmarried dependent children... from the age of 1 month through 18 years. Newborn children are covered automatically at the age of one month—at no additional cost!

NOTE: The regular monthly premium shown above (for your age at time of enrollment) will not automatically increase as you pass from one age bracket to the next. Once you have enrolled in this National Home plan, your rate can never be changed because of how much or how often you collect from us—or because of advanced age—but only if there is a general rate adjustment, up or down, on all policies of this type in your entire state.
